R. J. FINE CHARGED IN WARRANT WITH SOLICITING BRIBE

County Prosecutor Acts Upon Affidavit of John Regnier, a Saloon Keeper.

BASIS IS LOAN OF $100

Excise Official Alleged to Have Asked for Money, Though
Two Friends Signed Note.

Robert J. Fine, member of the St. Louis County Excise Board, is accused of soliciting a bribe, in a warrant which was issued at noon today by Prosecuting Attorney Ralph at Clayton.

The charge is based on the assertion of John Regnier, a St. Louis County saloon keeper, as told in the Post-Dispatch two days ago, that Fine solicited a $200 loan from him, and got $100. Regnier said he made the loan ostensibly to M. W. Richmond, known as "Punch" Richmond, and E. H. Barnes who signed a note for the $100, and have since renewed the note, but that the loan was asked for by Fine.

The offense charged is a misdemeanor and is punishable with a fine or a jail sentence, or both. The warrant was issued by Justice Knoche of Creve Coeur.

Ralph endeavored to keep the issuance of the warrant secret, until after the return of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Brooke, who went to get the affidavit of a witness, whose name Ralph would not make known. Ralph admitted at 2 o'clock that the warrant had been issued.

It was said the warrant probably would be given, for service, to a deputy constable of Bonhomme Township, in which Fine lives.

Fine is in the lumber business, and has a St. Louis office in the Wright Building. He was appointed to the Excise Board by Gov. Major, as a representative of the Progressive party, the regular Republican party not obtaining representation. Regnier said in an affidavit submitted to Ralph that Fine solicited a loan from him, and that he obtained a loan from Charles Schubert. The first suggestion made was that a charge of oppression in office might result. Whether there is any additional feature to the case, such as soliciting a bribe, Ralph did not state.

Fine was not at his office in the Wright Building when a reporter called for a statement.

MUNDAY'S EAST ALTON CASHIER GIVES DETAILS OF TRANSACTIONS

Testifying in Trial at Morris, Ill., He Tells of Overdrafts, Being Held Six Days.

MORRIS, Ill., Oct. 22.—Details of the account of C. B. Munday with the People's Bank of East Alton were related on the stand today by William Carey, cashier and manager of the Alton bank, in the trial of Munday, charged with conspiracy in connection with the failure of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

The witness said that in the three years of his employment with the People's Bank he never received any currency from Munday. When Munday's checks on his bank were received and the account was not sufficient to meet them, the witness said, he was instructed by Munday to draw on any firm of which Munday was the head, and to send the draft to the La Salle Street Bank. Sometimes, the witness said, he held these overdrafts as long as six days.

Until he went before the grand jury in Chicago, when the affairs of the La Salle Street Bank were being investigated, the witness said that he did not know that any of the capital stock of the Ashland Trust and Savings Bank, La Salle Street Bank subsidiary, had been issued to him.

KILLED IN SENATOR'S AUTO

Law Student Meets Death Riding
With Dalley Family Near Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 22.—Joseph Johnson, Washington, D. C., was killed, and State Senator John Dalley, his wife and daughter, Lucille, of Peoria, were injured, according to telephone advices near Peoria, Ill., today, when an automobile in which they were making a trip to Chicago went into a ditch. The injured were taken to St. Mary's Hospital at St.reator.

Joseph Johnson, the man killed, was a law student in Senator Dalley's office here.

MAKES MILLION IN WAR SHARES

John A. Drake of Old "Waldorf-Crowd" Again in Speculative Field.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—John A. Drake, whose name was on the tip of everyone's tongue when the United States Steel Corporation was formed and whose racing was in its heyday, has gone into stock speculation again and built up big credits on the books of brokers. Drake was a friend of the late John W. Gates and a member of the old "Waldorf-Crowd." His headquarters are again at the Waldorf, though for years before the war he spent so much of his time in France as to be considered an expatriate.

Drake is credited with taking $400,000 out of Studebaker alone, as that stock soared from 92 to 195, and is said to have made winnings in General Motors and Steel common. Altogether his profits are reputed to be at least a million dollars.

HERE'S CURE FOR A LAZY HEN

She Locks and Unlocks Door by Her Activity.

NORWICH, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Levi Downs of New Berlin Junction, has obtained a patent on a nest trap. The hen locks the door when she goes on the nest and unlocks it when she departs. When she enters the nest her weight closes the door. The egg as it enters the nest goes to the bottom into a drawer, unlocking the back door, allowing the hen to pass out. If a lazy hen changes her mind about laying she finds herself a prisoner and cannot get out until she produces the goods.

CANDY TAKING LIQUOR'S PLACE

Leonard Schiltz of Brewery Family to Manufacture Sweets.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 22.—Candy is supplanting liquor as an article of refreshment in dry states, according to Leonard Schiltz of the Schiltz brewery family. Schiltz discovered on a trip through the Western states that there is a big demand for candy. As a result, he was instrumental in the organization of the new corporation which will manufacture candy in Milwaukee.

FINE APPLES FOR PRESIDENT

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 22.—Thomas Highfill, head apple grower of the big Morrill orchard, near Wallula, in Leavenworth county, shipped a barrel of fine wineapples to President Wilson and Mrs. Galt today as a wedding present.

Schiltz discovered on a trip through the Western states that there is a big demand for candy. As a result, he was instrumental in the organization of the new corporation which will manufacture candy in Milwaukee.

Miss Wilson Returns to White House. WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Miss Margaret Wilson, eldest daughter of President Wilson, who has been away for several months visiting friends and on concert tours, has returned to Washington. She was met at the train by the President.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC INTO NEW YORK BREAKS RECORDS

Side Tracks Near the City
Choked With Loaded Cars—
More Men Being Employed.

EXPORTS UNPRECEDENTED

Values of Transatlantic Shipments in September Reached
Total of $163,000,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A general revival of freight traffic, unequalled since 1907, was reported today by almost every railroad entering New York City, or with terminals on the New Jersey shore across the Hudson River. At the office of the Erie Railroad it was said that tonnage figures for last month available today showed that the business done in September, 1915, was the greatest ever recorded on the books of the company in the operation of the road.

Tonnage on the Baltimore & Ohio on shipments to New York and for export had increased 60 per cent, it was said, within the last 90 days.

New Haven and N. Y. Central. The New Haven Railroad was moving more freight today, it was said, than it had moved for years before.

The New York Central lines reported that business was so good that hundreds of extra men had been employed to handle the traffic and that deliveries of the 500 to 600 cars recently ordered were being hurried to care for the traffic.

On the Central Railroad of New Jersey the volume was equal, it was stated, to the previous high record of the Central. Some slight delay had occurred on this road in handling export shipments, but this was being rapidly adjusted. For a time all sidings as far away as Somerville, N. J., 35 miles from New York, were choked with loaded cars. These were being moved expeditiously now. It was reported in the face of a steadily increasing flood of traffic greater than any recorded in years.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. declined to state the volume of business being done over its lines, but in railroad circles it was reported that seldom in the road's history had it been equaled before.

Steamship companies have pressed into service every possible craft to carry the enormous volume of exports across the Atlantic and are working the vessels at top speed. A great many transatlantic liners have been taken off, but their places have been filled, as far as possible, by chartering other vessels from coastwise craft to tramp steamers and even sailing ships.

An uncommon thing for a transatlantic liner to be turned back to England within 48 hours after her arrival, an unusual procedure before the past few months. Every vessel that sails out of New York harbor these days for Europe from clipper to passenger liner, rides low in the water with a cargo crowding her holds.

Merchandise exports from this port last month, according to figures made public today, broke all previous records. Their value was $151,000,000. In September, 1914, exports from this port were a little under $82,000,000.

BISHOP PRAYS TO SEE A WOMAN PRESIDENT

"I Admit a Little Fear That Woman's Movement May Lessen Domestic Virtues," Says H. H. Moore.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 22.—Bishop David H. Moore of Cincinnati, for 40 years a notable figure in the Methodist Church, in an interview here today said:

"I pray to God that I may live to see a woman President of the United States. The only question is whether God had a right to the statute creating his contingent fund, to spend State funds on his trip to the Auditor's convention, and that point must be decided by the judges."

The case will come before Judge John G. Slate. He is a Democrat and a candidate for re-election. Prosecuting Attorney David W. Peters, who filed the information, is a candidate for Republican nomination to succeed Slate.

$700,000 LEFT TO CINCINNATI SYMPHONY SOCIETY BY WOMAN

Owner of Chain of Drug Stores Also Remembers Hundreds of Employees in Her Will.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—An amount estimated by attorneys at $700,000 has been bequeathed to the Cincinnati Symphony Society by the will of Miss Cora Dow, a prominent retail druggist, who died here last Sunday. Besides this, Miss Dow remembered every one of her hundreds of employees in her will.

Miss Dow amassed a fortune in the retail drug business here during the last 26 years. She began as a clerk in her father's small pharmacy and took over his business at his death. One by one she bought up drug stores in this city until she had established a chain of 11 stores. Shortly before her death she disposed of her drug store properties for a reported price of $1,000,000.

KAISER VISITS BELGIAN COAST

Also Spends Night in Brussels; Distributes Decorations.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam says:

"Emperor William visited Ostend and the Belgian coast defenses last week, accompanied by Prince Eitel Friedrich and Gen. von Falkenhayn, chief of staff. The party spent one night in Brussels and also visited the Duke of Wurttemberg's headquarters at Ghent. The Emperor distributed a number of decorations in the course of his trip, which was veiled with the closest secrecy on account of the fear of aeroplane attacks."

AUDITOR GORDON FILES BOND; CASE SET FOR NOV. 15

Charged With Issuing Unlawful Warrants for Expense for Convention Trips.

FIVE REPUBLICANS SIGN

Secretary Roach, Treasurer Deal, John M. Atkinson and Other Democrats Sureties.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 22.—State Auditor John P. Gordon today filed a $1000 bond for appearance at the November term of the Circuit Court, to answer to the charge of having issued, unlawfully, warrants against the State Treasury to pay his personal expenses to Salt Lake City, to attend a convention of State Auditors, and the expenses of his son, Morris, Building and Loan Supervisor, to San Francisco, to attend a building and loan convention.

Gordon's friends and attorney worked late last night and this morning to get the signatures of prominent men on the bond. It was circulated by Auditor Gordon's attorney, A. T. Dunn, and Walter Chorn, new Insurance Commissioner, personal and political friend of the Auditor. Chorn returned a few weeks ago from San Francisco, where he attended an insurance convention.

Republicans on Bond.

Among the signatures on Auditor Gordon's bond are those of five Republicans—L. C. Lohman, father of Ira Lohman, one of the Auditor's attorneys; Paul Hunt, stationer, who has the State stationery contract under the printing commission, of which Auditor Gordon is a member; W. A. Dalmer, member of the Missouri Commission for the Panama Exposition, appointed by Gov. Major; George E. Haigh, who was appointed a member of the State Dental Board by the Governor, and Late Bacon, a merchant.

Secretary of State Roach's name is the first surety on the Auditor's bond. Nearly all other signatures are those of Democratic officials or employees of the State.

Those who signed the bond are: E. P. Deal, State Treasurer; Walter K. Chorn, Insurance Commissioner; John M. Atkinson, chairman of the Public Service Commission; J. A. Huegel, hotel proprietor, father of a Burlington officer at the penitentiary; Howard Cook, son of Sam B. Cook; Armstrong & Tolson, druggists; John T. Short, superintendent of construction for the new capitol; A. Brandenburger, druggist; J. T. Mitchell, Commissioner of the State Board of Health; D. D. Capelle, member of the Parson Board; H. B. Shaw, member of the Public Service Commission; L. S. Parker, Superintendent of Industries at the Penitentiary; Hugh Stephens, State Printer, and J. C. A. Hiller, member of the Capitol Commission.

Case Set for Nov. 15.

The case against Gordon is set for Nov. 15, first day of the November term. Attorney Dunn indicated this morning that he probably would file a demurrer and ask that the case be dismissed.

"There is very little question of fact involved for the jury to pass upon," he said. "The only question is whether Gordon had a right to the statute creating his contingent fund, to spend State funds on his trip to the Auditor's convention, and that point must be decided by the judges."

The case will come before Judge John G. Slate. He is a Democrat and a candidate for re-election. Prosecuting Attorney David W. Peters, who filed the information, is a candidate for Republican nomination to succeed Slate.

Map Showing "Corridor" to Constantinople Through the Balkans Which Germany Hopes to Open Soon

THE war in the Balkans is a war for a roadway only and without any consideration of territorial acquisition in so far as the major nations engaged in it are concerned. Germany and Austria want the old crusade route opened up so they can send munitions to Constantinople and get in return cotton and raw material they need badly. This route is known as the "corridor" of the Balkans and through it threads from Belgrade to Constantinople by the way of Sofia a magnificent railroad. Bulgaria has lent its aid to this enterprise in return for promises of territory, but Serbia stands in the way. As a result, an Austro-German army of 500,000 has been hurled at Serbia to clear that drawbridge in the railroad line to Constantinople for military traffic.

The arrows at the north indicate the direction of the Austro-German invasion. The arrows at the south from Saloniki indicate the movement of Anglo-French troops to head the Germans off. Arrows also indicate where the Bulgarians are reported to have cut the Nish-Saloniki railroad at Vranja over which the allies have been provisioning and munitioning the Servians. The allies have taken Strumitza but only because it is on a thumb of Bulgaria that projects into Serbia and happened to be in their way. They didn't go into the Balkans to invade Bulgaria, but to keep the Germans from getting possession of the railroad route to Constantinople. The heavily shaded portion indicates the "corridor."

BOY STOLE AUTOS BECAUSE MOTHER WOULDN'T BUY ONE

After Arrest, Youth Under Parole as Forger, Tells of Several Thefts.

Harry A. Gildersleeve, 15 years old, of 722 Hamilton avenue, after his arrest in Granite City this morning while driving a new automobile he had stolen from the Stearns Auto Co., 3030 Locust street, confessed to the police that he had stolen many machines in St. Louis. He told the police that he would keep on stealing machines until his mother would buy him one.

Gildersleeve has been arrested several times for driving off autos. He is now in the custody of the juvenile court under the name of Harry McDonald, after having been convicted of forging the name of Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl to a check for $15 which he tried to pass in a cafe in the West End.

The youth was arrested in Granite City at 2 a. m. At first he told the police he was taking the car to relatives in Springfield, Ill. Later he confessed, saying he entered the auto company's store by removing a window glass. He then opened the front door and ran the car out. He said he intended to take it to Chicago and sell it.

He told the police that he stole the machine of Andrew Matrone, of 406 Westminister. The police have been looking for this machine for a week. He said he drove it to the Clayton road where he ran into a ditch. He says the machine is now at a Clayton repair shop. He also confessed taking a car belonging to William H. Frank, from Grand and Franklin avenues, Oct. 20. He said he abandoned this car on the St. Charles rock road. He said he recently took a car from Locust avenue and abandoned it in the country. He boasted to the police that he can start and operate any automobile.

6-HOUR DAY FOR VICTOR SHOPS

Phonograph Concerns Grants Concession to 7500 Employees.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Victor Talking Machine Co. announced today that it will soon place its 7500 employees on an eight-hour day with no reduction in pay.

The company estimated the cost of the concession at $1,000 for the first year and stated that the employees did not demand the change.

CAPTAIN OF THE 'MOLTKE' DESCRIBES SUBMARINE ATTACK ON BIG CRUISER

German Warship Damaged by Torpedo but Cruised on Two Days, He Tells Von Wiegand—In Hartlepool Raid.

The Post-Dispatch published yesterday the first part of a description by Karl H. von Wiegand, the Post-Dispatch correspondent in Germany, of his visit to the German fleet at sea and of the fleet as he found it. The second part of his narrative is printed below.

Von Wiegand is the first neutral correspondent, and, for that matter, the first neutral civilian, since the war began, to visit the ships of the German navy on watch in the North Sea.

By Karl H. Von Wiegand,
A Staff Writer for the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

ON BOARD THE BATTLE CRUISER MOLTKE AT SEA ON OUTPOST DUTY, October —, (By dispatch boat to Wilhelmshaven—delayed in censorship.)—"This eternal vigilance, this infernal waiting and waiting for something that doesn't come, though it may come or may not come, is a hard strain on patience and nerves," said Capt. Magnus von Levitzow, commander of the big battle cruiser.

"Would the German fleet accept a challenge from Great Britain's enormous fleet?" I asked.

"Just let it show itself and come out of hiding, and you will see whether or not we will!" replied the commander of one of the Kaiser's most powerful armored cruisers, which the English had reported as at the bottom of the Baltic Sea.

"But the English say the same of Germany's fleet," I reminded him. "Of course, they say that, but the English fleet is more than two to one against us. It can hardly be expected that we will run out and bait a fleet more than twice our size and under its own conditions. I don't think the world expects that of the German fleet, either, in view of such an inferiority in numbers. But let the British fleet come out and we are likely to be there. No one seems to know exactly where the British fleet is. There wouldn't be much difficulty in finding us. Our presence is not suffering on land or sea."

Tells of British Coast Raid. Sitting in his cabin, the only ornaments of which are numerous photographs of his beautiful young wife and his four handsome, chubby children, and a steel engraving of the great strategist, Moltke, after whom this battle cruiser was named, I heard from her commander the stories, for the first time, from the German side, of the Hartlepool raid, the Dogger Banks battle and the Riga Bay fight. The Moltke has participated in the majority of naval events during the war.

"It's irritating to be considered out of the game, and at that, supposed to have been put out and down by one measly torpedo," said the commander, as he pulled out of his desk a number of illustrated London papers and periodicals with his illustrations of the Moltke, headlined "Sunk."

"But you got a torpedo," I said. "But it didn't do any real harm to the ship," he replied. "We were not in the Riga Bay fight as reported. We were a considerable distance off there, steaming abreast with the Seydlitz, which was about 600 yards off our port side. I was in the chart room behind the bridge when I heard the Seydlitz's warning. Before I reached the bridge there came a terrific explosion forward—an indescribable metallic ring or a loud clang.

"A column of water more than 75 feet high rose in the air and tumbled over the forward deck and bridge, drenching me and everybody around. The Moltke seemed to pause for a moment. The cruiser trembled and shook from stem to stern, like a dog shaking off water, then plunged on again.

"The torpedo came from the other side of the Seydlitz. Evidently the submarine fired at that ship, missed it and caught us in the bow. The lookout on the Seydlitz had seen his air bubbles caused by the torpedo leaving its tube, and then he saw the path of the torpedo. He tried to warn us, but it was too late. It was too bad to have destroyed the British commander's illusions or to detract from his alleged achievement, for which, I understand, he was decorated. But truth is truth, and as you see yourself, my splendid battle cruiser didn't sink, and the British will still have to reckon with the Moltke if we ever get a chance at them."

"But why didn't the English submarine commander fire again?"

"That's what puzzles me. I always

52,357 British Casualties Published Since Oct. 1

LONDON, Oct. 22.

BRITISH casualties published since Oct. 1 total 52,357 officers and 50,972 noncommissioned officers and men, a total of 103,329.

By Associated Press. BERLIN, Oct. 22, by wireless to Sayville.—Bulgarian troops have advanced south of Strumitza and have driven the forces opposing them (presumably allied troops from Saloniki) across the Vardar River, it was officially announced today by German army headquarters.

The Vardar River runs along the southwestern Bulgarian frontier and flows into the Gulf of Saloniki.

Occupation of Kumanovo and Velaz by Bulgarian troops is also announced. Field Marshal von Mackensen's Austro-German forces have further advanced in the north. Gen. von Koenigs' troops having reached a line running from Aranyev to Slatina Mountains, while the army under Gen. von Gallwitz has advanced to a front running through Salavac, Savinovac and Trnovca and to the north of Ranovac.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—From three sources today it is reported that Greece has rejected the offer of Great Britain to cede the island of Cyprus in return for participation in the war by Greece on the side of the allies. The London Times says it understands the offer has been rejected, and a dispatch from Rome says from information available there it is likely that Greece will reply that she "will abide by her policy of armed neutrality." It is reported from Athens that the Greek Government newspaper, Emporos, has quoted Premier Zaimis as saying Greece's policy will remain unchanged, and all newspapers are said to have expressed the opinion editorially that there has been no alteration in the situation.

The development emphasizes the critical military position of Serbia. Hampered by superior forces on two sides, the Serbians are threatened with being crushed as no army has been crushed during the war. Not only are these facts admitted in England, France and Russia, but they are reflected in official Serbian statements. The key to escape from this situation lies in the hands of the allies. At few places are the Serbians as much as 20 miles south of the Danube. In fact the ground gained averages a depth of only 10 miles.

The Bulgarians for their part are displaying tremendous energy, indicative of a carefully laid plan preceding the declaration of war. With 25 miles of the Nish-Saloniki railway in their hands, they have a strategic advantage which it will be difficult to overcome.

It is reported that Turkish cavalry is co-operating with the Bulgarians and that a great battle is raging at the Macedonian town of Velez, where the Serbs won a victory over the Turks in the Balkan war of 1912. According to an unofficial report, the Bulgarians have taken the town.

Conversations also are proceeding with Rumaniya while Gen. Underwood is in charge of the French Foreign Office.

Meanwhile all the belligerents realize that the best way to influence the neutral states is to win a big victory. Austria, Germany and Russia are trying for this in Serbia, Germany in Courland and France, Italy in Tyrol and Trentino, and Russia near Slobin, which, roughly is the center of the eastern front, Volhynia and Galicia.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg is in attack on Riga, has reached Olat, which is half way between Riga and Mitau and only a dozen miles southwest of the Baltic port. The German offensive extends along a front of about seventy miles and the German flanking movement on the right has reached the Dvina River, 30 miles southeast of Riga, from which point the Drinsk-Riga railway is being bombarded.

The Italian advance in Tyrol and Trentino is being bombarded.

BELGIAN COUNTESS SAVED FROM FIRING SQUAD BY KAISER

intercession by President Wilson, King Alfonso and Pope Save Four Persons Sentenced for Aiding in Escape of Soldier Prisoners.

U. S. MINISTER TRIED TO SAVE MISS CAVELL

British Nurse Was Executed After Night Plea to Governor, Who Said "Emperor Himself Could Not Interfere."

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Emperor William has notified King Alfonso that he has pardoned the Countess de Belleville, Mile. Thullier and the other Belgians condemned to death in Belgium for aiding in the escape of prisoner soldiers. Says a dispatch to the Exchange: Telegraph Co. from Madrid.

The Countess Johanna de Belleville, Mile. Thullier, a school teacher; Philip Hauco, an architect, and Louis Severin, a chemist, were mentioned in the official proclamation announcing the execution of Miss Edith Cavell as having been sentenced to death by the German authorities in Belgium. The proclamation also gave the names of 23 persons who had been sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

Pope Benedict, King Alfonso of Spain and President Wilson are said to have interceded with Emperor William on behalf of these persons, and the Emperor was reported to have ordered a suspension of the execution of the sentences in order that he might make a detailed examination into the cases.

Retired Over Nurse's Execution. The story of the execution of Miss Cavell as told in the correspondence sent by American Minister Whitlock at Brussels to the American Ambassador at London and printed in full in all the leading morning papers. It is predicted, will send a wave of indignation throughout the country.

In Trafalgar Square yesterday all heads were bared to the memory of Miss Cavell.

The full report of the circumstances of the condemnation and execution of Miss Cavell, made by Minister Brand Whitlock at Brussels to Ambassador Page in London, was issued by the British Government last evening. The report shows that Miss Cavell admitted the charge against her and bravely declined to make any plea herself for clemency, although others made every effort possible in her behalf.

How the secretary of the American Legation, Hugh S. Gibson, sought out the German Governor, Von der Lancken, late at night before the execution, and with the Spanish Minister pleaded with the Governor and the German officers for the English woman's life is graphically related in a memorandum from Gibson. This document makes reference to an apparent lack of good faith on the part of the German authorities in failing to keep their promise to inform the American minister fully of the trial and sentence.

Minister Whitlock telegraphed to Ambassador Page on the 12th: "Miss Cavell sentenced yesterday and executed at 2 o'clock this morning, details of best efforts continued until the last moment."

Whitlock's final appeal was in the form of a note sent by a messenger late on the night of the 11th to Gov. von der Lancken, reading as follows: "Mon Cher Baron: Je suis trop malade pour vous presenter ma requete. Mais je vous prie de faire une lettre pour moi au coeur pour l'appuyer et pour dire la mort cette malheureuse. Ayez pitié d'elle."

"Votre Veuve Devoue," "BRAND WHITLOCK."

"My Dear Baron: I am too sick to present my request myself, but I appeal to your generosity of heart to support me and save from death this unhappy woman. Have pity on her. Yours truly, BRAND WHITLOCK."

Had Nursed German Soldiers. Whitlock also stated that Miss Cavell had nursed German soldiers.

Delavan, counselor of the American Embassy, reported to Minister Whitlock: "This morning Mr. Gahan, an English physician, told me that he had seen Miss Cavell in her cell yesterday night at 10 o'clock and that he had given her holy communion and had found her admirably strong and calm."

"I asked Mr. Gahan whether she had made any remarks about anything concerning the legal side of her case and whether the confession she made before trial and in court was in his opinion perfectly free and sincere. Mr. Gahan

Women of Riga, Russia, Digging Trenches to Defend Their City

—Photograph, Copyrighted, by Underwood & Underwood.

THE peasant women of Riga and its surrounding territory have had a great part in the successful defense of their city against Von Hindenburg's great army which has been hammering away at that part for three months. They have been helping in digging the magnificent system of trenches with which the city has been so successfully protected. The peasant women of Russia are accustomed to work in the fields with the men to do as much work, so they wield the pick and spade with vigor.

val's report continues, "of my intention to be present at the trial so as to watch. He dissuaded me from taking such an attitude, which, he said, would cause great prejudice to the prisoner, because the German Judges would resent it and feel that it was almost an affront if I was appearing to exercise a kind of supervision on the trial."

Failed to Get Information. Deleval's report says that Attorney Kirschen assured him repeatedly that the military court of Brussels always was perfectly fair and that Herr Kirschen would keep him informed of all developments in the case, but that Herr Kirschen failed to give him any information and that after the trial Deleval learned from other sources the following:

"Miss Cavell was prosecuted for having helped English and French soldiers, as well as Belgian young men, to cross the frontier and go to England. She admitted, by signing a statement before the day of the trial, that she was guilty of the charges, not only that she had helped these soldiers to cross the frontier, but also that some of them had thanked her in writing when arriving in England."

"The Spanish Minister even led Baron von der Lancken aside in order to save very forcibly a number of things which he would have felt a hesitancy in saying in the presence of the younger officers and of Mr. Deleval, a Belgian subject."

"His excellency talked very earnestly with Baron von der Lancken for about a quarter of an hour. During this time Mr. Deleval and I presented to the younger officers every argument we could think of. I repeated words of our own thought, of our own belief, of our own certainty, and of our own conviction, for the only request of this sort you had made since the beginning of the war."

"Unfortunately, our efforts were unavailing. We persevered until the very end, but it was clear that there was no hope of securing any consideration for the case. We left shortly after midnight and I immediately returned to the legation to report to you."

"HUGH GIBSON." Counselor of Embassy Deleval reported to Whitlock that on the failure of the German authorities to reply to Whitlock's request on Aug. 31 that Deleval be permitted to see Miss Cavell in order to have all necessary steps taken for her defense, another letter was dispatched Sept. 10, to which a German reply on Sept. 12 refused the request, but referred him to Attorney Kirschen, who was designated for her defense.

Attorney Kirschen, Deleval reported, stated that Miss Cavell was being prosecuted for helping soldiers cross the frontier and that lawyers defending prisoners before a German military court were not allowed to see their clients before trial and were not shown any document of the prosecution, but that trial was developed so carefully and slowly that it was possible to have a fair knowledge of all the facts and present a good defense for the prisoner.

"I informed Mr. Kirschen," Mr. Deleval said, "that on the failure of the German authorities to reply to Whitlock's request on Aug. 31 that Deleval be permitted to see Miss Cavell in order to have all necessary steps taken for her defense, another letter was dispatched Sept. 10, to which a German reply on Sept. 12 refused the request, but referred him to Attorney Kirschen, who was designated for her defense."

"The circumstances of the case were explained to him and your note was presented. He expressed disbelief in the report that sentence had actually been passed and manifested some surprise that the German authorities should have so easily accepted the facts of the case. He was quite insistent on knowing the exact source of our information, but this I did not feel at liberty to communicate to him."

"Baron von der Lancken stated that it was quite improbable that sentence had been pronounced and even if it would not be executed in so short a time, and that in any event it would be quite impossible to take any action before morning."

"It was, of course, pointed out to him that even if the facts were as we believed them to be, action would be taken to see that the facts were as we believed them to be. We argued to him to ascertain the facts immediately. This after some hesitancy he agreed to do. He telephoned to the presiding Judge of the court martial, and returned to say that the facts were as we had presented them and that it was intended to carry out the sentence before morning."

"We then presented as earnestly as possible our plea for delay. So far as an able to judge we neglected to present no phase of the matter which might have had any effect, emphasizing the horror of executing a woman, no matter what her offense, and pointing out that the death sentence had been imposed only for actual cases of espionage and that Miss Cavell was not even accused by the German authorities of anything so serious."

"I further called attention to the failure to comply with Mr. Conrad's promise to inform the legation of sentence. I urged that inasmuch as the offense charged against Miss Cavell were long since accomplished and as she had been in prison for some weeks delay in carrying out the sentence could entail no damage to the German cause. I even went so far as to point out the fearful effect of a summary execution of this sort upon public opinion both here and abroad, and although I had no authority for doing so, called attention to the possibility that it might bring about reprisals."

Spanish Minister Supports Plea. The Spanish Minister forthrightly supported all our representations and made an earnest plea for clemency. Baron von der Lancken stated that the military Governor was the supreme authority in matters of this sort, and that an appeal from his decision could be carried only to the Emperor, the Governor-General having no authority to intervene in such cases.

DAZZLING LIGHTS CAUSE ARREST OF 175 AUTO DRIVERS

Five Women Among Those Taken by Police in Attempt to Enforce Ordinance.

Five women were among the 175 automobile drivers arrested last night for having dazzling headlights on their automobiles, and one for having no headlights, in the police roundup of violators of the headlight ordinance. The ordinance prohibits headlights which throw a shaft of light higher than three feet above the ground at a distance of 75 feet in front of the car. In Police Court this morning 110 motorists paid costs. Other cases were continued.

Mrs. Adolph E. Winkemeyer of 5746 Waterman avenue, wife of the president of the Union Biscuit Co., who was secretly married a few weeks ago in Springfield, Ill., after a romance extending over a period of more than 20 years, was one of the first drivers arrested on a charge of having dazzling headlights. She was driving her car without any lights at all. She was arrested.

"Hard Luck" Rivals. Morris Samuels of 1430 South Grandville place, a contractor, and Otto Smith of 1222 Hebert street, were rivals for championship "hard luck" honors. Samuels was arrested in the Carr street district because his headlights were too bright. He was released on bond, and decided that in order to drive home without being arrested again it would be necessary to turn out his lights. He had traveled but a few blocks and crossed into the Dayton street district when he was arrested for having no headlights.

Smith was arrested in the Newstead avenue district because his headlights did not conform to the requirements of the city ordinance. After his release he started home, he explained, to adjust his headlights, and was arrested for speeding.

Victor Essen, son of Fred Essen of Clayton, St. Louis County, political boss, was arrested for having a dazzling headlight. He was recently arrested for speeding and was fined $15.

Faults Early Remedied. The city, at the request of the Automobile Club of St. Louis, established a plant in the basement of the city hall several weeks ago for the testing and adjustment of automobile headlights. Automobile owners, by driving their cars to the plant, may have them tested free. A slight tilting of the lamp, which changes the angle of the reflector, is in many cases all that is needed to make the headlights conform to the ordinance.

Many automobile owners have soaped, painted or dulled their headlights with nitric acid in an effort to make them conform to the law. After the lights have been adjusted by the experts at the city hall a small metal tag is attached to the steering wheel as evidence of the inspection, and this renders the owner immune from further arrests.

"BRAND WHITLOCK." In a report to Ambassador Page at London, Whitlock wrote: "I know that you will understand without my telling you that we exhausted every possible effort to prevent the infliction of the death penalty, and that our failure has been felt by us as a very severe blow. I am convinced, however, that no step was neglected which could have had any effect."

"From the date we first learned of Miss Cavell's imprisonment we made frequent inquiries of the German authorities and reminded them of their promises that we should be fully informed as to developments. As they were under no misapprehension as to our interest in the matter."

The British Foreign Office, in a note to Ambassador Page, asks him to express to Whitlock and his staff the British Government's grateful thanks for their efforts in behalf of Miss Cavell.

BURIAN OBJECTS TO CRITICISM OF DUMBA'S PRIVATE PAPERS. AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—A dispatch from Vienna says that Baron von Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in replying Sept. 29 to a note of the American Ambassador concerning the request for the recall of Dr. Dumba, Austrian Ambassador to the United States, said he could not refrain from expressing the opinion that the contents of diplomatic correspondence accidentally made public should not be made the object of official criticism, as was done in the American case.

Baron von Burian concluded by expressing a desire that the relations between Austria-Hungary and the United States should continue of a friendly and cordial character.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Dr. Dumba, who has arrived at the Hague, has issued a brief statement to the press saying that he intended to make a short stay in Holland and would abstain from any political conversations. He called the statements attributed to him that "Austria-Hungary should demand the recall of the United States" as absurd invention.

NATIONAL REALTY BODY'S EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS HERE

Thirty-Three Members Representing 96 Exchanges Report That Business Is Good.

Thirty-three men, representing the 96 real estate exchanges of the country, met at the Planters Hotel this morning at the quarterly meeting of the executive board of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges. Each was talking prosperity. Walter C. Piper of Detroit, who presided, said that the real estate business was an almost perfect business barometer and that it now showed a wonderfully successful business being done throughout the country, especially in the Middle West.

Mayor Martin Behrman of New Orleans, who is trying to secure for his city the next annual convention of the real estate men, said that business throughout the south had increased remarkably in the last three months and that business of all kinds said and had been better.

C. M. McDonald and John J. Dowling, Executive Committee members of the St. Louis Exchange, told all comers that there was a real estate revival on in St. Louis. Thomas S. Ingersoll of Minneapolis, executive secretary of the association, said that he had made a tour of New England and that all the old unoccupied buildings there were being turned into factories.

The business of the morning was largely executive. One resolution was adopted advocating greater simplicity at the national conventions. Secretary Ingersoll explained that the local exchanges in cities entertaining the conventions provided too much entertainment and the committee appointed to select the next convention city, of which J. J. Dowling of this city is chairman, was instructed to arrange with the next hosts for more business and less amusement.

Hill Ferguson of Birmingham, Ala., said he believed the next convention would be in that city. The Alabama exchanges have provided much printed matter setting forth the city's claims.

CHARLTON'S TRIAL RESUMED, HIS CHIEF COUNSEL PRESENT. COMO, Italy, Oct. 22.—The trial of Porter Charlton on the charge of having murdered his wife was resumed today. Miceli Picardi, Charlton's chief counsel, was in court, although he had not recovered from his illness. A verdict is looked for by next Tuesday.

Twenty witnesses were interrogated. Among them were hotel keepers, boatmen, porters, physicians, a druggist, a milkman and the owner of the house in which the Charltons were living at the time Mrs. Charlton met her death.

The witnesses gave contradictory testimony concerning the mode of life of the Charltons and their quarrels.

Wade's Auto Hit by Car. No One Hurt in Accident Caused by Confusion of Signals. A Compton car struck Festus J. Wade's automobile at Eighteenth and Locust streets at 9:40 this morning as Wade was being taken from his home, 4451 Lincoln boulevard, to the Mercantile Trust Co., of which he is president. The traffic policeman on duty at the crossing said he signaled a car ahead of Wade's to cross the street on track, but that he immediately reversed the signal for Wade's car. Notwithstanding, he said, Wade's negro chauffeur, Joseph Whiting, went ahead, and the northbound car struck the machine.

Wade's car was pushed 10 feet and was somewhat damaged, and the street car fender was bent. No one was hurt.

NO MORE BACKACHE NO MORE MISERY

New Remedy Dissolves Impurities That Clog Kidneys and Bladder. Great Success.

Your kidneys WANT to do their work properly. It is not their fault if they don't. An eminent authority has discovered that backache, rheumatic pains and other forms of kidney trouble come from the formation of small acid crystals that clog the filtering membrane of the kidneys like barnacles on the bottom of an old ship. You can strain water through a cloth and there are our kidneys cannot filter the impurities and the acids build up and clog the filtering membrane and dissolve matter.

It is cases of this kind a new treatment that has already shown remarkable results. It is called Solvax. Solvax is a powerful solvent of all acids and is straight to the CAUSE of the trouble. It works its way into every fold and all of the filtering membrane and dissolves matter.

WIRELESS "HELLO" FROM ARLINGTON HEARD IN PARIS

First Trans-Atlantic Talk by Radio Is Pronounced a Big Success.

MAY CHAT WITH TOKIO

Words Going in Other Direction Are Heard in Honolulu, Further Away Than Paris.

Edison Speaks on Phone for First Time; Wireless Tune Sent

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.

At last Thomas A. Edison has talked over a telephone. He did it last night for the first time.

Another record was made last night when the first tune ever sent through the air from coast to coast was transmitted from Edison's laboratory at West Orange, N. J., to San Francisco, where it was listened to by Edison, who is visiting the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The strange fact was disclosed by Edison himself that when he talked to a gathering of friends in his laboratory, from San Francisco, last night, it was the first time he ever had carried on a conversation over a telephone either wire or wireless. Edison, who is very deaf, uses a device for intensifying sound, but he dislikes to use it except on occasions when it is necessary for him to hear plainly.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Officials of the American Telegraph and Telephone Co. today announced that officials listening at the Eiffel Tower in Paris heard words spoken on Tuesday and Wednesday nights by engineers of the company, by means of apparatus developed by that company and the Western Electric Co. and installed in the Government wireless station at Arlington, Va.

It was declared that observers in the Eiffel Tower, after receiving the telephone messages, called to the officials of the company in this city a repetition of the words sent from Arlington. It was stated further that the antennae employed in Arlington was that of the United States Navy Department and had been placed at the disposal of the company through the courtesy of that department.

In the experiments of Wednesday night the signals and spoken words not only reached Paris, but, traveling in an opposite direction, they were heard distinctly at the receiving station in Honolulu by Lloyd Espenchied, the company's representative there. Espenchied cabled yesterday, according to the statement made by the company, that he had not missed a word or a signal sent from Arlington.

Further verification of the test was received over the telephone from John J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., who is in Chicago.

He said that if it had not been for the present war the test of Wednesday night would have preceded that of telephoning by wireless from Arlington to Honolulu, Mare Island, Panama and San Diego, which was announced on Sept. 22. He added that while the transmission of the spoken word to Paris by wireless involved the bringing of the ether for 3000 miles only, as compared with 4000 miles separating Arlington from Honolulu, it was more important from a practical standpoint.

The American Telegraph and Telephone Co. sent two of its engineers, H. E. Shreve and A. M. Curtle, to Paris some weeks ago to prepare for the transatlantic tests. They found the French Government greatly interested in the experiment and notwithstanding the importance of Eiffel Tower as a military station, arrangements were made that the Americans would have limited facilities for listening. They were permitted to install the receiving set they had brought and certain hours of the day and night were designated by the military authorities when they could have the station practically to themselves.

For some time the heavy interference of high-power wireless telegraph stations in the neighborhood and unfavorable static conditions prevented the experts from getting the satisfactory results they had hoped for, but, according to the company, the test was successful.

Makes Your Stuffed, Germ-laden, Catarrhal Head Clear as a Bell

When you wake up in the morning plagued with the tortures of head colds and catarrh, head, nose and throat stopped up, air passages clogged with obnoxious catarrhal discharges that have collected during the night and you can barely breathe—just put a little Nujol in your nostrils. It will clear your head, soothe the inflamed membrane, loosen the mucus, and give you a clear, refreshing breath.

By the time your head will be clear as a bell, you will breathe with ease and comfort, and go about your day's work with a clear brain and steady nerves. This clean-smelling, germ-destroying Nujol penetrates deep, wa into every fold and crevice of the membrane lining of your nose, throat and lungs where no liquid spray could possibly get and absolutely kills the cause of your system every germ it finds there. It is a wonderful time-saver and gives you a wonderful relief. It is a clean, safe and every catarrhal germ is killed and driven out of your system.

Druggists everywhere think so well of Nujol that they will give you a free trial bottle. If you are sure you will be satisfied, return every cent you paid for it. If you are not, the bottle is yours. Be sure to ask for the complete Nujol package, do not contain the smaller package, which will not give you the full relief. Nujol is a clean, safe and every catarrhal germ is killed and driven out of your system.

Wizards of Electric and Plant Worlds Meet for the First Time

LUTHER BURBANK, wizard of the plant world, greeting Thomas A. Edison, wizard of electricity, in Sacramento while Edison was en route to the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. It was the first meeting of these two great men.

to the officials, they heard words and signals from Arlington more than a week ago. At the request of the French Government no announcement of this was made at the time.

The messages sent on Wednesday night from Arlington were short sentences and words of a few syllables. "Hello" and "Good-by" and messages up to 10 words were heard most plainly. These signals and words were sent out by R. A. Heising and B. E. Webb and several other wireless engineers, who were manipulating the apparatus from the transmitting station.

It was stated by the company's officials that simultaneously with its reception in Paris the messages sent from Arlington were heard on the wireless antennae at the Western Electric Co.'s laboratory in this city and at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard in Honolulu. Espenchied heard the Arlington operator call "Hello," "Schree" and "Good-by," Schree as plainly as if the speaker was a block away.

Recognizes Sender's Voice. Espenchied cabled he even recognized the peculiar intonation of Webb's voice, with which he is familiar. He also mentioned when Heising took his turn at the transmitting instrument.

In his talk over the telephone from Chicago to this city, Carty, in answer to a question as to how long it would be before transatlantic wireless telephony would be put on a commercial basis, said he did not want to make a prediction.

"However," he continued, "I have no doubt we shall soon be able to telephone from New York to Tokio. There is a great amount of work to be done before we can realize that ambition, despite the rapid advance that has been made in the last few years."

"It must be understood that we have as yet installed no transmitting apparatus in Paris or in Honolulu. That is the reason we had to get verification of the success of our tests from those places by cable. There are several obstacles in the way of sending one of these sets to the Paris station. Perhaps the war is one of them."

British Submarines Destroy Vessels of Total Tonnage of 10,000 in Baltic.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 22.—The British submarine campaign against German shipping in the Baltic is being carried on actively. The sinking of four more German steamships is reported: The Hernoand, 1182 tons gross; Plauen, 4210 tons; Rendsburg, 4630 tons, and Electra, 1261 tons.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—A telegram received here from Sofia makes a categorical denial of the report that the Bulgarian city of Strumitsa has been captured by Anglo-French troops. The message states that in encounters which took place with a Bulgarian detachment, the French and British were defeated and were unable to make any advance toward the Bulgarian frontier.

Few Servians Taken Prisoners, They Fight Till Death.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22.—A representative of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger at the Serbian front, telegraphs that the desperate resistance of the Servians is responsible for the relatively small number of prisoners taken by the Austrians and Germans.

"Servian troops rarely surrender, even in hand-to-hand encounters," the correspondent says. "They fight until the last possible moment. Thus there are enacted in these battles horrible scenes of the wildest fighting, unparalleled on any other front."

FOOTBALL PLAYERS TO BE WITNESSES AT SCOTT INQUEST

City Hospital Physicians Not to Resign Because Osteopaths Treated Youth.

MAYOR ORDERED ACTION

Institution's Staff Opposed Their Admission Although Young Man's Parents Desired It.

Players of the St. Louis University football team will be summoned by Coroner Padberg to attend the inquest, to be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, into the death of Bryan Scott of Galesburg, Ill., half-back of the Knox College team. His death, according to an autopsy held today, resulted from hemorrhages and injury to the spinal cord, inflicted in last Saturday's game at Sportsman's Park.

Members of the regular visiting staff of the city hospital denied today that they intended to resign, because of the action of Mayor Kiel and Director of Public Welfare Tolkaas, yesterday afternoon, in issuing a special order permitting two osteopaths, Drs. Crenshaw and Bailey, to treat the case.

Osteopaths Admitted at Last. The osteopaths obtained admission about 1 o'clock, after three hours' effort, the acting superintendent having refused to let them handle the case. At that time, the injured youth and his parents asked that the osteopathic treatment might be tried, as the regular visiting staff desired to give up the case as hopeless.

When the request for this order was presented to the Mayor, Hospital Commissioner Shutt told the Mayor that if such an order were issued the visiting staff of the hospital might resign. The visiting staff was composed of strictly "ethical" physicians, he said, who were opposed to the recognition of osteopathy.

The Mayor replied that as the staff had given up Scott's case he saw no reason why another treatment should not be tried, particularly as the youth and his parents desired it. If the visiting staff desired to strike for this reason, he said, they could go ahead and strike.

A report that a meeting of the visiting staff was held, to discuss the question of resigning because of the Mayor's action, was denied today by Hospital Commissioner Shutt and members of the staff.

No Resignations Expected. No member of the staff said he had taken to several of the others and did not believe there would be any resignations.

Dr. Ralph L. Thompson, who held the autopsy at the hospital, made it the occasion for demonstrating to several students, the peculiar character of the injury inflicted in the football game. Scott, who was conscious almost to the last, and who could talk, although his limbs were paralyzed, did not blame any other player for the accident. He was injured in tackling Fullback Wynn of the St. Louis University team, as he threw himself at Wynn's legs. He failed to turn his head aside, as tackled usually do, and his head struck Wynn's knees with great force.

"CASCARETS" FOR YOUR BOWELS IF HEADACHY OR SICK

For biliousness, bad breath, colds, indigestion and constipation. Enjoy life! Live your liver and bowels tonight, and feel fine.

Your tongue is coated! Look inside your mouth. What have you been eating? What were you drinking? What kind of a lazy chair did you take exercise in? Now don't think it doesn't matter, because it's your bowels that talk now. That doesn't help your popularity, nor your earning capacity. Besides, a person with bad bowels is in a bad way and a coated tongue or a bad breath are sure signs of bad bowels and poor digestion.

Why don't you get a 10-cent box of Cascarets at any drug store and give your liver and bowels the nicest, gentlest cleansing the yever experienced. Take one or two Cascarets tonight and wake up feeling fine and fit. All Headache, Dizziness, Biliousness, Bad Breath, Stomach Sourness, Cold and Constipation gone—wake up with your head clear, tongue clean, stomach sweet, liver and bowels active, step elastic and complexion rosy.

Cascarets work while you sleep—never gripe or sicken. Cascarets act so gently that you hardly realize you have taken a thorough cathartic. Cascarets are perfectly harmless to best children's laxative—ADV.

MELLEN TELLS OF RAILWAY ACTS TO SIDETRACK RIVALS

Witness Identifies So-Called "Corsair" Agreement of New Haven With Boston & Maine.

OLD MINUTES ADMITTED

They Show Steps by Which Competition Gradually Was Eliminated in New England.

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Charles S. Mellen was expected to finish today the first part of his testimony concerning the consolidation of the New Haven Railroad system, which he is giving in the trial of 11 of his former associates on charges of conspiracy to monopolize railroad traffic.

When the hearing was resumed today, Mellen had been led by counsel for the Government to the revision of the relations between the New Haven and Boston & Maine railroads. He had revealed also that he was hired at a large salary by the New Haven to do nothing as vice president, because he had caused the Boston & Maine to be a general manager of the New York & New England Railroad.

A copy of the so-called Corsair agreement, which divided the transportation traffic of New England between the New Haven and the Boston & Maine on the Boston & Albany line, was first shown to Mellen today by Frank L. Swacker, the attorney for the Government who is examining the witnesses. Mellen explained that this was not the real Corsair agreement, made on J. P. Morgan's yacht Corsair.

Real Corsair Agreement. "The real Corsair agreement," he said, "was a division of traffic between the New Haven and New York Central at the Boston and Albany Junction (at Springfield, Mass.). But I have always referred to this agreement here as the Corsair. It was made at Mr. Morgan's house."

The witness identified the signatures of Morgan and other directors who put their names to the agreement and was then asked to identify minutes of New Haven directors' meetings which described the successful negotiations in 1892 of a lease of the New York, Providence & Boston line, one of the New Haven's early competitors, through its steamship connection with New York. The lease carried with it a contract under which stock of the New York, Providence & Boston was to be subsequently exchanged for New Haven stock, share for share, and the lease canceled.

William Rockefeller, the minutes showed, was not present at the directors' meeting at which the lease was approved, but wrote a letter asking to be recorded as in favor of the proposition. Two years previous, other minutes revealed, the New Haven rejected a similar proposition.

The New Haven stock, in order to provide for the exchange with the Providence line shares was increased by $5,000,000, according to other minutes, which the witness identified. This action was taken in May, 1892, and later that year it was shown that the New Haven also acquired another independent line, the Providence & Worcester.

Bought Ship Line Shares. Swacker then laid before the jury, still reading minutes, an account of how the directors obtained control of the minority shares of Providence & Stonington Steamship Company, the majority of whose stock was controlled by the New York, Providence & Boston.

The Federal attorney then handed the witness the so-called "Round lines agreement," dated 1881, signed by the presidents of the then existing New England Steamship Lines and their connecting New England railroad lines to fix rates. Its admission was objected to, but Judge Hunt ruled that the Government had the right to introduce it as showing the existence of a conspiracy which the defendants came into a later date.

The witness identified records revealing that the directors, including William Rockefeller, voted in April, 1891, to withdraw from joint business with the New York & New England if the New England should open a proposed through line connecting by water with New York. Similar action, the records showed, was threatened against the Boston & Maine and another through connection were routed.

Important Government Evidence Introduced Through Mellen Yesterday. Although Mellen was characterized by Frank L. Swacker, the Federal attorney, as a "frankly hostile witness" during the continuation of his testimony, yesterday, the attorney succeeded in introducing through Mellen what is deemed some of the most important evidence against the defendants contained in the Government's case.

Mellen frankly conceded that the early competition between the New Haven road and the New York & New England, which it subsequently absorbed, was of the cut-throat variety. He testified that it was a state of fevry between the Boston & Maine and the New Haven that led up to the famous Corsair agreement by which the two roads agreed to keep out of each other's territory.

He identified minutes of the board of directors' meeting of the New Haven whereby steps were taken to enter into agreement with the New York Central to keep other roads from entering New York City. He told how the New Haven had obtained control of two of the New York & New England's connections with New York City and cut them off.

With evident relief, he related the story of having, as manager of the New England, brought the New Haven to its knees by threatening a rate cut and of making such a "nuisance" of himself that he was virtually bought off by the New Haven with an offer of the vice presidency of the road, which he accepted. This was in 1892.

The attorneys for the defense fought for nearly a half hour to keep out of the records the ancient minutes of the New Haven board, which R. V. Lindabury described as "dead, dusty and moribund." They were signed by William B. Bishop, a former secretary of the New Haven, now dead, and, although the witness identified Bishop's signature, Lindabury contended there was no proof that what he recorded might not have been erroneous.

Tripartite Agreement. Attorney Swacker went back with the witness to the so-called tripartite agreement of 1872 between the New Haven, the New York Central and the New York & Harlem River, whereby the three roads entered New York City at the present Grand Central terminal and shared the expenses of the terminal. This was intended, the Government contended, to prevent the entrance of other New England roads into New York and the Federal attorney then proceeded to show through the witness how one road having connections with the New York and New England was an alleged victim of this agreement. It was the New York & Northern, which had connections with the New York & New England at Brewster, N. Y.

Mellen identified minutes of the New Haven directors dated February, 1893, which recorded the appointment of a committee headed by George Maculloch Miller to take up the New York and Northern matter with the New York Central. William Rockefeller was recorded as among those present.

He identified minutes of a meeting held a week later, in which it was revealed that the New York Central had obtained control of the New York & Northern and that in consideration of its "perpetual administration" under the tripartite agreement the New Haven would pay the New York Central an additional $500,000 as its contribution toward the expenses of the terminal.

Corsair Agreement. Coming to the Corsair agreement, which took its name from an erroneous statement that it was signed on J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, Swacker had the witness identify minutes dated March 4, 1892, authorizing a committee consisting of Morgan, Rockefeller and Bishop, to meet a committee from the Boston & Maine "to make such future arrangements as would promote their mutual interest."

This resulted, according to minutes of a meeting one week later, in the ratification of the Corsair agreement, by which the Boston & Maine agreed not to acquire new lines south of the Boston and Albany line, and the New Haven on the other hand was to acquire no lines north of that line.

"What were the conditions that led up to this agreement?" asked the witness. Mellen said that at that time A. A. McCleod, president of the Boston & Maine, also was president of the New York & New England. The latter road and the New Haven had had a contest for the control of the Old Connecticut Railroad and the New Haven won. They had another contest for the Connecticut River road and the New England won. It was this rivalry which led to the Corsair agreement, he said.

Rockefeller, the minutes showed, was not present at the directors' meeting at which the lease was approved, but wrote a letter asking to be recorded as in favor of the proposition. Two years previous, other minutes revealed, the New Haven rejected a similar proposition.

The New Haven stock, in order to provide for the exchange with the Providence line shares was increased by $5,000,000, according to other minutes, which the witness identified. This action was taken in May, 1892, and later that year it was shown that the New Haven also acquired another independent line, the Providence & Worcester.

WIDOW WHO MARRIES EAST ST. LOUIS MAN

MRS. ROBERT CONWAY.

MRS. MAY BUTLER LOSES $400 MONTHLY BY HER REMARRIAGE

As Mrs. Robert J. Conway She Will Receive but $1200 a Year From Edward Butler Estate.

By her marriage yesterday, Mrs. Robert J. Conway, formerly Mrs. May Crohn Butler, widow of John R. Butler, will forfeit all but $100 of the monthly income which she has been receiving from the Edward Butler estate. Forrest P. Tralles, attorney for the estate, said today that Mrs. Butler had been receiving about $500 a month.

Conway, to whom Mrs. Butler was married at St. Roch's church, is general manager of a packing plant in East St. Louis. He was a widower, with four children. Mrs. Butler had three children. Her first husband died several years before the death of his father, who was the noted blacksmith-politician and financier.

Edward Butler's will provided that one-sixth of the income of his personal estate should go to Mrs. May Butler and her three children, and her income was one-fourth of this amount, or one-twenty-fourth of the whole. The will also provided that, if she should marry, she would thereafter receive $100 a month.

The provision for Mrs. May Butler and her children was in the form of a trust fund, administered by the Mercantile Trust Co. and James J. Butler. This trust fund will continue as to the children, and the mother's share less the $100 a month which she will still receive, will be added to the amount to be divided among the children.

'DREAM' WELL IN STAUNTON FIELD IS OIL-PRODUCER

Louis H. Miller and His Family Join Hands and Dance Around Successful Bore.

Encouraged by the manifestations of oil encountered yesterday afternoon in sinking a well in the Staunton (Ill.) field, workmen today began to case the well, preparatory to "shooting" it. A rush order was sent to Casey, Ill., in the center of the eastern field, for pipe. As soon as sufficient has arrived to case the 440-foot bore, the well will be shot by an expert to open up the oil vein.

There was a family gathering at night about the drilling rig, out in a meadow on the Schnaare farm, three miles northeast of Staunton. About the middle of the afternoon one of the Bachelor brothers, of Carterville, who are operating the oil rig, appeared at the place of Louis H. Miller in Staunton and told him that an 18-foot bed of oil sand had been struck at a depth of 42 feet. Miller and his wife and his relatives, who make up the Louis H. Miller Oil Co., which has been doing most of the drilling around Staunton, hurried out to the well and watched the work. Between 5 and 6 o'clock, when the bailer completed one of its trips, crude oil gushed out on the ground in place of the water and mud which for months had been the only showing.

Spot Indicated by a Dream. The Millers grasped hands and danced with glee for Miller's faith that there was oil in Macoupin County had been justified. Miller said the well which proved up was sunk at a place in a ravine on the Schnaare farm, close to Cahokia Creek, at a spot where his wife had said was indicated to her in a dream.

Miller is a butcher and for years has cherished the idea of striking oil in Macoupin County, spending thousands of dollars in an effort to prove his belief. He did strike gas in large quantities, so powerful a flow as to be of high commercial possibilities, but he wanted oil and kept digging.

More than fifty wells have been sunk in Macoupin County within the last year, but only three struck anything and they produced gas. At last all the prospectors gave up and moved away except two—Miller and the Ohio Oil Co. The latter determined to sink a 2000-foot well to get a concise log of the strata, and this well is now in progress.

There was considerable excitement in Staunton when it became known that the Millers had struck oil and hundreds visited the well.

"MOLTKE" CRUISED ON TWO DAYS AFTER BEING TORPEDOED

like to think myself into a man's place and figure out his reasons for actions or nonactions. Apparently he was less than 1000 yards from the Moltke and not more than 600 from the Seydlitz. And it was he who reported the Moltke sunk? Certainly if he had stuck up his peri-scope he would have seen the Seydlitz and Moltke steaming away.

The Captain said that ever since the war began he had wondered what it would be like to have his ship torpedoed.

and now he knew. He said the excellent bulkhead construction and safety system worked even beyond his expectations.

Struck on Extreme Bow.

"The torpedo struck the ship on the extreme bow," he explained, "crushing in only one side of a narrow torpedo chamber. That and the adjoining compartment quickly filled. Altogether we had 45 tons of water in us. But as it would take something more than 15,000 tons to sink the Moltke, you see, it wasn't at all serious. We kept on our cruise two days longer, with water subsiding in and out of the hole, before we turned homeward for repairs.

"In dry dock we opened the bulkhead doors and, after the water was pumped out, we found four bodies of the eight of the torpedo crew who had been killed. The other bodies had washed out.

"Our torpedo tube was broken and three torpedoes had been smashed by the explosion of the submarine's torpedoes. It was remarkable that our torpedoes didn't go up. That speaks volumes for their construction and safety.

"The experience has been of great value. It has made the crew and officers somewhat indifferent to torpedoes. The manner in which the bulkheads and safety system worked has given supreme confidence to every man aboard. I never did consider a torpedo—certainly not one torpedo—as fatal to a modern warship, if properly built.

"This experience strongly confirms that opinion. I consider a shell from a big gun, when it hits a vital spot, far more dangerous.

"The torpedo tore a hole only in one side of this narrow bow torpedo room, as you will see, while a shell probably would have created much more havoc."

Commander Is Puzzled.

The commander pulled at his hair in a puzzled manner.

"But why didn't the British commander shoot again? That's what I want to know," he said.

It seemed to annoy him greatly that he couldn't fathom the English officer's mental process.

"And why did he report he had sunk me when he didn't? Perhaps he didn't stick up his glass eye above the water until we were out of sight and then he was misled by some of the men's kit bags, which had been stowed in a corner of the torpedo room out of the way, floating about. They had washed out through a hole. One thing certain, that English officer wasn't like our Weddigen."

In going through the Moltke, from fire hole to conning tower, I also was in the bow torpedo room, which has been repaired. I quite agreed with the Captain that, from all I had heard about the terrific force of torpedoes, it seemed remarkable that this one hadn't torn both sides of the bow of the narrow compartment.

Indicative of the spirit of the crew, which, like all in the German navy—in contrast to the British—is not composed of professional blue-jackets, but is drawn for three years' naval service from the people, just as the army is, the commander said there was a singular coincidence in that, during torpedo-room inspection a few days before, he asked the late crew of that torpedo tube what they would do if a torpedo or a shell should happen to strike there.

"We would remain here at our post," they answered.

"Why not try to get out through the emergency bulkhead door if you could?" asked the Captain.

"Because that might flood the other compartments and endanger the ship," the commander said they replied.

"Poor fellows! If they were not killed by the explosion, they certainly kept their word," he commented. "Let us think that some of them at least were not killed outright and died sticking to their posts rather than endanger the ship, as they thought, by opening the emergency escape."

I observed that the battle cruiser was a veritable maze of small compartments, divided by bulkheads, with every door tightly closed. I witnessed exercise drills to meet emergencies of every conceivable kind of disaster in all parts of the ship.

Moltke was at Hartlepool.

The Captain and some of his officers related to me the story of the Hartlepool raid in December and the Dogger Banks battle of Jan. 24.

The Moltke, together with the Seydlitz and Bluecher, was at Hartlepool, not Scarborough.

The officers said that, before the cruise, they had fired a shot, the Moltke got a six-inch shell from the forts, which struck the battle cruiser and tore away several officers' cabins in a lightly protected portion of the ship. I saw a number of steel-patched holes, the result of that attack.

"That certainly is convincing proof that Hartlepool is not an open, unprotected town, as widely heralded by the English," argued the Moltke's officers.

"It takes a pretty good-sized gun to fire a six-inch shell."

The shell killed a big black cat, the favorite mascot of the Moltke's crew, which was taking a nap in a bunk in one of the cabins.

A blunder of fire patrol duty in that section told me the story of the shell and of later finding the cat dead without a mark.

Capt. von Levstow said four destroyers came out and attacked the cruiser. A torpedo passed between the Seydlitz and the Moltke. One destroyer was almost cut in two by the fire of the German cruiser, and a second was badly damaged and the others fled.

In the Dogger Banks battle, during which the Bluecher was sunk, the Moltke was not only hit, but her deck was covered with splinters from shells which fell all around. The Bluecher was much smaller and slower than the Moltke, Seydlitz and other battle cruisers in that fight, in which the British Lion was badly shot up by the Germans, compelling her Admiral to transfer his flag.

For change and recreation there are various forms of amusements and games. All the ships have almost nightly moving picture shows with the latest films, those from the theaters of war being especially prized. One of the best movie shows I ever saw was last night, about the Moltke.

I was struck by the fact that nearly every officer I have talked to on board the Moltke or the other ships was a deep student of foreign relations and foreign politics, which they discussed with a wealth of detailed information from history past and present, showing they were not merely cursory readers. Even in the cabins of some destroyers, young officers brought out the latest works, asking my opinion of their contents. Very interesting it was to learn their views of the future Germany as a result of the war.

Whatever political differences there are, however much they hold England responsible for the war, there was a high estimation of the British fleet as a foe and a respect for the officers and men of the British fleet as even approaching boastfulness that the German fleet could wipe out the British.

"Ship for ship, man for man, we believe ours the better, but only a test can decide that and we think the officers and men of the British fleet are just as desirous of that test and of real action on sea as we are. But we do think that the British fleet, being twice our size, it's up to them to come out and challenge us," said one of the highest officers.

I was curious to learn if there was any feeling against America just at present, when some of those in aggressive nationalistic circles feel sensitive and resentful because of the concessions in the submarine war. Officers and men recalled to me with pleasure their stay in Norfolk, Newport News, Newport and elsewhere, together with American warships.

But whether at the Captain's table, to which the other officers are often invited, or to the wardroom, they always got back to "Will the English come out?"

WIFE "NO. 104" BY ADOPTION BECOMES FINLEY J. SHEPARD

Former Miss Helen Gould and Husband Take Boy From Home for Foundlings.

PARENTAGE IS A MYSTERY

Flaxen-Haired Child Is Made Heir to Fortune of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—On the great estate called Lyndhurst, at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, a boy, the son of whom was Miss Helen Miller Gould—a small boy, between 4 and 5 years old, is romping. A nurse and a governess attend him. Finley J. Shepard is his name. He is pretty, and flaxen-haired and long, dark, wavy hair over his big, blue eyes. He is the legally adopted son of the Missouri Pacific Railroad official and of the daughter of the late Jay Gould.

A court order of adoption, signed by Surrogate William A. Sawyer of Westchester County, gave the lad his name and position. At the same time it made very happy his foster parents, who married late in life (Shepard was 46, Miss Gould 45), and assured him without his knowing it, of riches and social position. The little chap was taken by the Shepards from St. Christopher's Home in Dobbs Ferry, a Methodist institution in which there are 300 other parentless boys and girls.

"We took him," said Mrs. Shepard to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "because he's such a lovable, teachable boy, and because we have such a big place up at Irvington that it seemed to me every time I looked about it as though children should be running all over it all the time."

Patrolman Finds Boy.
Who the adopted child's parents are is not known. He was found in the doorway of the Fifth Avenue entrance to St. Patrick's Cathedral by a patrolman the night of Sept. 15, 1914. The police turned the boy over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The Children's Society designed the child as "John Doe No. 104." He could talk. Indeed, he insisted upon talking. But he couldn't be understood very well. He lisped a name which sounded very much like "Austin McLeary." He seemed to have come from Philadelphia, or to have lived there, for he repeated the numbers 61 and 84 Broad street, the street being the most important thoroughfare in Philadelphia. But there was nothing satisfactory in his prattle, and so his name officially remained "John Doe No. 104, alias Austin McLeary."

He was sent to St. Christopher's Home in Dobbs Ferry, where his name remained "John Doe No. 104" until yesterday, when it became Finley J. Shepard and the name of Lyndhurst, over which, according to their mistress, "children should be running all the time," were put into his possession formally. He was named for his adoptive father and his adopted mother's father. His first name and middle initial are the same as his adopted father's, but his adopted father's middle name is Johnson, so that the lad does not become Finley J. J.

The boy has been at the Shepards home several months, although this fact has been kept secret. In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard have made every effort to learn his identity, without success. They decided to adopt him anyway.

The Shepards were not alone in their efforts to find the parents of the boy. After he had been taken to the home of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the newspapers learned about him. They printed the story of his being found by the patrolman. He grew to be as attractive that on Oct. 4, nearly a month after he was found, the New York World had a special article about him, with his photograph as "John Doe No. 104." Indeed, he was interviewed by a reporter who got the impression, as everyone else did, that the boy was from Philadelphia, and that his name was Austin McLeary.

Prattles Varying Stories.
First he said "a man" had left him on the cathedral steps. Then he said "his boy" had taken him away from home. His native surroundings he described variously as being where there was grass and cows and chickens, or where there were bricks and teams and automobiles. He was quite willing, in his lovable way, to be either a city boy or a country boy, whichever one wanted him to be. He seemed to think he had a sister named Gwendolyn Mary. At least there appeared to be some little girl of that name in his life, for he gave it voluntarily.

Either while the youngster was in the children's society house or shortly after he was sent to Dobbs Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard became interested in him and began their search to find his parents before taken the legal steps necessary to adopt him. On Jan. 22 of this year a story was published to the effect that Walter B. Walker, a lawyer at 135 Broadway, was trying to learn the baby's antecedents and that he, in cooperation with a Philadelphia attorney, had been unable to learn anything about the boy. Walker offered the theory that the little fellow had been kidnapped and abandoned. It was learned that Walker was a member of the legal firm of Leonard & Walker, attorneys for the Shepards and that he was working in their behalf.

the Union of South Africa. The Nationalists, who opposed the military operations against German Southwest Africa, and are attempting to defeat the plan to dispatch a contingent of the Union forces to Europe, thus far have obtained only 21 seats, mostly in the Free State. Their victories here were expected and seen.

GEN. BOTHA'S MAJORITY SAFE
Opponents Obtain Only 21 Seats in South African House.
CAPE TOWN, Oct. 22.—The followers of the Premier, Gen. Louis Botha and the Unionists, who are supporting the premier, are assured of a safe majority in the House of Assembly of iment in that state is in favor of Gen. Hertzog, one of the premier's bitter opponents. He is regarded as the most influential Boer general, although in the uprising of last year he placed his services at the disposal of Gen. Botha.

WIFE "NO. 104" BY ADOPTION BECOMES FINLEY J. SHEPARD

Former Miss Helen Gould and Husband Take Boy From Home for Foundlings.

PARENTAGE IS A MYSTERY

Flaxen-Haired Child Is Made Heir to Fortune of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—On the great estate called Lyndhurst, at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard—the latter of whom was Miss Helen Miller Gould—a small boy, between 4 and 5 years old, is romping. A nurse and a governess attend him. Finley J. Shepard is his name. He is pretty and flaxen-haired and long, dark lashes droop over his big, blue eyes. He is the legally adopted son of the Missouri Pacific Railroad official and of the daughter of the late Jay Gould.

A court order of adoption, signed by Surrogate William A. Sawyer of Westchester County, gave the lad his name and position. At the same time it made very happy his foster parents, who married late in life (Shepard was 46, Miss Gould 46), and assured him without his knowing it, of riches and social position. The little chap was taken by the Shepards from St. Christopher's Home in Dobbs Ferry, a Methodist institution in which there are 300 other parentless boys and girls.

"We took him," said Mrs. Shepard to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "because he's such a lovable, teachable boy, and because we have such a big place up at Irvington that it seemed to me every time I looked about it as though children should be running all over it all the time."

Patrolman Finds Boy. Who the adopted child's parents are is not known. He was found in the doorway of the Fifth avenue entrance to St. Patrick's Cathedral by a patrolman the night of Sept. 12, 1914. The police turned the boy over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The Children's Society designed the child as "John Doe No. 104." He could talk. Indeed, he insisted upon talking. But he couldn't be understood very well. He lisped a name which sounded very much like "Austin McLeary." He seemed to have come from Philadelphia, or to have lived there, for he repeated the numbers 6 and 64 Broad street, the street being the most important thoroughfare in Philadelphia. But there was nothing satisfactory in his prattle, and so his name officially remained "John Doe No. 104, alias Austin McLeary."

He was sent to St. Christopher's Home in Dobbs Ferry, where his name remained "John Doe No. 104" until yesterday, when it became Finley Jay Shepard and the laws of Lyndhurst, over which, according to their mistress "children should be running all the time," were put into his possession formally. He was named for his adopted father and his adopted mother's father. His first name and middle initial are the same as his adopted father's, but his adopted father's middle name is Johnson, so that the lad does not become Finley J. Jr.

The boy has been at the Shepard home several months, although this fact has been kept secret. In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard have made every effort to learn his identity, without success. They decided to adopt him anyway.

The Shepards were not alone in their efforts to find the parents of the boy. After he had been taken to the home of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the newspapers learned about him. They printed the story of his being found by the patrolman. He grew to be so attractive that on Oct. 6, nearly a month after he was found, the New York World had a special article about him, with his photograph as "John Doe No. 104." Indeed, he was interviewed by a reporter who got the impression, as everyone else did, that the wee lad was from Philadelphia and that his name was Austin McLeary.

Fratties Varying Stories. First he said "a man" had left him on the cathedral steps. Then he said a "big boy" had taken him away from home. His native surroundings he described variously as being where there was grass and cows and chickens, or where there were bricks and teams and automobiles. He was quite willing, in his lovable way, to be either a city boy or a country boy, whichever one wanted him to be. He seemed to think he had a sister named Gwendolyn May. At least there appeared to be some little girl of that name in his life, for he said he voluntarily.

Either while the youngster was in the children's society house or shortly after he was sent to Dobbs Ferry. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard became interested in him and began their search to find his parents before taken the legal steps necessary to adopt him. On Jan. 22 of this year a story was published to the effect that Walter B. Walker, a lawyer at 135 Broadway, was trying to learn the boy's antecedents and that he, in cooperation with a Philadelphia attorney, had been unable to learn anything about the boy. Walker offered the theory that the little fellow had been kidnapped and abandoned. It was learned that Walker was a member of the legal firm of Leonard & Walker, attorneys for the Shepards and that he was working in their behalf.

GEN. BOTHA'S MAJORITY SAFE

Opponents Obtain Only 21 Seats in South African House. CAPE TOWN, Oct. 22.—The followers of the Premier, Gen. Louis Botha and the Unionists, who are supporting the premier, are assured of a safe majority in the House of Assembly of the Union of South Africa. The Nationalists, who opposed the military operations against German Southwest Africa, and are attempting to defeat the plan to dispatch a contingent of the Union forces to Europe, thus far have obtained only 21 seats, mostly in the Free State. Their victories here were expected and seen.

Hussung "Getz" Bugs!

ment in that state is in favor of Gen. Hertzog, one of the premier's bitter opponents. He is regarded as the most influential Boer general, although in the uprising of last year he placed his services at the disposal of Gen. Botha. The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

EMPLOYER LIABLE FOR INJURY DESPITE INSURANCE POLICY

Kansas Supreme Court Decides
That Payment of Part Salary
Does Not Prevent Suit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 22.—Payment of half salary during the period of an employee's injury, from accident insurance paid for out of the employer's salary, does not relieve the employer from liability to damages for any carelessness on his part from which the employee suffered. That is the doctrine laid down by the Kansas Supreme Court.

G. B. McAdoo, a motorman in the employ of the Kansas City Western Railway, was injured while in the discharge of his duties. He sued the company for damages, notwithstanding he had received from it half his regular salary while disabled. The lower court found against the plaintiff, who appealed.

It was in evidence that the payments to McAdoo, as to any other employee disabled while on duty, were from an accident insurance policy which the company pays for through retention of 50 cents a week from the employee's salary, and that there is between the company and its employees an oral agreement that in case of injury the employee thus paying for his accident insurance shall receive half his regular salary during the period of his disability up to one year. The higher court held that this arrangement does not relieve the employer from liability for damages due to negligence on its part.

BOYS ONLY BLACK CALVES

Missouri Feeder and Shipper Very Much of a Specialist.

FULTON, Mo., Oct. 22.—June Ferguson of Topeka, one of the largest livestock breeders and shippers from this section, says he has on hand 30 head of black calves, which he will feed for the late winter market at St. Louis. Ferguson has been highly successful with his shipments of calves of this color, obtaining top prices for them. He keeps no other kind and sells even those having white faces.

What are termed "black calves" are the Angus breed, and buyers at the St. Louis and Chicago markets hold them in high favor for their meat qualities, which are claimed to be more compact and tophome. This superiority is not generally conceded, but the idea is sufficiently widespread to give them that rating with buyers for the better class of consumers.

CORN LEADS ARKANSAS CROPS

Value Estimated at $44,822,000. White Value of All Yields is $109,427,500.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 22.—Commissioner Page of the State Department of Mines, Manufactures and Agriculture, estimates the value of Arkansas farm products this year at $109,427,500. Corn is first, with a value of $44,822,000 and cotton second at $40,000,000. Poultry and eggs are estimated at $15,000,000, and cottonseed at $10,000,000.

Reduction of the cotton acreage this year is estimated at 14 per cent.

NEBRASKA FARMERS DON'T NEED MONEY AND WON'T SHIP WHEAT

When New Crop Is Planted and They Have Little Left, Harvested Crop Will Be Threshed.
OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 22.—Farmers of this State have so much money that they won't thresh and market their wheat. That is what H. H. Holcomb, general freight agent of the Burlington Railroad, gives out as a fact, and he is in position to know.
"Last summer, just before harvest," we gathered thousands of freight cars and strung them along our line all through Nebraska, in preparation for the wheat harvest. But instead of threshing, the farmers stacked their grain and very little of it has been shipped. We are no longer holding the grain cars in readiness, because we anticipate no big demand.

"After the winter wheat is all planted and the farmers have nothing else to do, they will probably start threshing. They don't need the money and they can keep the wheat in stacks easier than they can build granaries."

GERMANY FACES CRISIS IN GRAVE LABOR PROBLEMS

Wages High and Plenty of Work but How About the Future?

MUST CARE FOR HEROES

Youths Are Rushed Through Apprenticeships and Many Spend Money Freely.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
BERLIN, Oct. 20.—The men and the women now employed at comparatively high wages throughout Germany constitute a problem that already is occupying the attention of labor leaders in every part of the empire. The more thoughtful of the workers realize that the days of big pay and unlimited work are not going to last forever, and that with peace is going to come a strenuous time of possible hardship, and they are saving their money.
The bulk of the workers, however, are not savers to any degree, but hand-to-mouth live, notwithstanding their present favorable circumstances—circumstances which certainly will not improve when several hundred thousand, if not several million bread earners now in the army are thrown back on the labor market.

Many Will Be Idle.
Though the more optimistic believe that employers will take back their old employees at once, they have to admit nevertheless that even such a desirable solution of the impending problems means the displacement of many now at work and that it presupposes an almost immediate resumption of the old volume of industry and trade.

The biggest problem is that of the adult male workers who with the advent of peace, can easily create an unprecedented non-employment situation. Other problems are those of the young men, boys for the most part, who in the present heyday of much work at high wages either have hurried through their apprenticeships or have become full-fledged master workmen at once, and who naturally will be loathe to relinquish their places even to the heroes of the Fatherland; and secondly, of the women now filling men's places.

The majority of the latter will return to their places in the home, but some proportion will have lost their husbands or supporters, and if forced out of their present occupations, will have to be taken care of elsewhere.

Union Treasurers Swollen.
Leaders of responsible organized labor organizations have taken advantage of increased wages to swell the treasuries. This has been the easier to accomplish because of the dwindling sums that have had to be paid out to the unemployed, when peace does come and the flood begins there will be millions on hand, but still not enough, in the estimation of the leaders.

Berlin and other large cities of Germany are bound to suffer most from an excess of workers, it is felt. No matter how often one hears many warnings, uncounted thousands will feel convinced that opportunity for employment lies in the big rather than in the little place, and who will swarm into it accordingly.
Alvin Kroeber of the Trade Employment Bureau is authority for the statement that the Government is prepared to ease the situation by the use of sums running, if necessary, into the hundreds of millions of marks for the support of the unemployed. If these sums have to be drawn upon, he believes, it will be the equivalent of an extended furlough on pay and will be the solution of the whole matter.

Peace on Peace Terms.
Surveying the whole German field of labor, Dr. O. Becker of the Association of German Employment Agencies, hesitates to venture a forecast until the outcome of the war is clearer. He feels that the whole immediate future of the German workingman depends on what the ultimate terms of peace may be—that it is by no means dark if Germany wins, but that a tremendously difficult problem is ahead if Germany should lose and be hemmed in more completely than it is now.

The German injured, light or seriously, in the interval of his Fatherland, bids fair always to enjoy the preference in the matter of work, and yet Germany today, as far as labor is concerned, is in the anomalous position of "not having enough cripples."

At present the crippled soldier has not yet learned a trade sufficiently to be able to fill the place that is open to him. Also he is, thus far, all too intent upon finding a "job" as petty official, doorman at some Government building, or something similar, to heed the calls for his services in a trade that formerly he thought sufficiently dignified, but which now he is inclined to scorn.
As a result there are only between 30 and 40 applicants for every 200 places that are on the market for crippled soldiers. There are never going to be enough "official" places to go round, but whether the wounded will revise their ideas of what is desirable only time will tell.

Problem Is Difficult.
All differences of opinion about how to handle the problem of soldiers returning to civilian trades are merged when the subject of pensions comes under discussion. Everything thus far indicates that the universal desideratum will be obtained through the co-operation of the pensioners themselves.

The central idea is that the pensioners must not be of a size to encourage idleness, must not be large enough so that the pensioners will have no need to work, but that, on the contrary, they must vary in size according to the earning capacity of each pensioner, that they must in effect be nothing more than a complement to each man's wages, a sort of bonus representing the difference between his pay and that of his unfortunated competitor so that he can be on equal terms with the latter.

BRUSSELS THOUGHT AEROPLANE WAS SIGNAL OF DELIVERANCE

Successes by Allies Celebrated with Champagne by Belgian Women in Evening Costume.

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—The Strasbourg Post describes the manner in which the Belgians received the news of the successes won by the allies on the western front last month.

"When the first news of the allies' victory became known a feverish emotion took hold of Brussels," says the Post. "Boys in the streets shouted the news. With great effrontery the French and Belgian national anthems were whistled all day in the streets, but on the approach of German patrols there was silence.

"Many rich Belgians from the outskirts of the city went into the capital and ordered champagne. Many of them were accompanied by their women folk in splendid evening costumes.

"At the corners of the streets where the German official reports were placarded there were laughing, unbelieving crowds. Then an enemy aviator appeared above the city. The citizens rushed to the rooms of their houses, thinking it was the hour of their deliverance.

"We must educate Brussels and the Belgians."

V. P. QUEENS IN STRIKING DANCES
AT CHARITY BALL

Performers Appear on Floor
After Pantomime Wearing
Their Stage Costumes.

LIGHTS 'OUT' 35 MINUTES

50 Couples Dance by Candle-Light—Benefit Nets More Than $5000.

Four Velled Prophet ball queens and a dozen debutantes, dancing on the ballroom floor in costumes which they previously had worn on the stage in their special dance numbers, lent a touch of the masquerade to the Charity Ball held last night at Moolah Temple, 321 Lindell boulevard, for the benefit of Children's Hospital.

The most striking of these costumes, if word of most of these present in to be accepted as authority, was worn by Miss Adaline Capen, the Velled Prophet queen in 1913. It was a daring Pierrette costume of white taffeta, with a black dot here and there, and a becoming hat worn at rakish angle. The skirt, which did not reach the knees, fluffed out at the bottom like a ballet dress. Miss Capen is considered one of the ablest exponents of the "Pierrot Fliz," a one-step drag that society is so "crazy" about, and she glided about the floor all eyes followed her.

Miss Elsa Zelig, the 1914 queen, and Miss Marie Church, the first maid of honor at the last Velled Prophet ball, also wore conspicuous figures in Pierrette costumes. Their skirts were about three inches longer than the one worn by Miss Capen. Miss Jane Shapleigh, the reigning queen, and Miss Jane Taylor, the 1912 queen, were in modest dresses made after the fashion of our great-grandmothers wore, in which they had appeared in a gavotte.

$5300 Cash Receipts.

The guests began arriving about 9 o'clock. Those who paid $10 a couple for admission took seats in the balcony. There were about 500 of these. Those who paid $50 for a box, seating six persons, took seats on the main floor of the auditorium. There were 55 boxes, and 46 of them were sold. When the ball started the committee had $5300 cash receipts, and it was said the gross revenue would exceed that figure by several hundred dollars. The proceeds are to be applied on the $12,000 debt on the Children's Hospital, one of the imposing Barnes Hospital group on King's highway.

An orchestra of 30 pieces, directed by Gus Hiaschen, played until 3:30 o'clock, when the electric lights flickered and everybody settled back in their seats, expecting the start of the Pierrot ballet and pantomime, arranged and directed by Rosalind Mahler Pufels. But the flicker was followed by absolute darkness.

The guests became restless and five minutes later it was announced that a transformer on one of the street poles had blown out. A few candles were placed about the main floor, and soon about 50 couples were dancing in the dim light. After a 35-minute wait the lights were restored.

At this time there was little semblance of a ball. The scene more nearly represented a fashionable audience awaiting Paviola. Three minutes after lights were restored, the spotlight was turned on the stage and the curtain went up on the Pierrot Pantomime, in which the performers were debutantes, second and third year girls, and those who soon will be making their debuts.

Youth Appears as Grecian God.
Howard Wilhelm, a local edition of Mordkin and still in his teens, appeared as a Grecian god, and in reality was usher of ceremonies on stage. Adaline Capen, Isabel Capen, Enid Simpkins and Edith Whittemore appeared in a Greek idyl, and wore filmy Grecian costumes. A pastoral was danced by Gloria Gelsinger, Marjorie Wolff, Marjorie Livingston, Irma Summa and Lucille Papendick. Howard Wilhelm gave the "Dance of the Greek God" and Miss Summa appeared in "Pas de l'Etolie," the dance of the star. Miss Whittemore, Miss Summa, Miss Livingston and Miss Gelsinger danced at times on their toes, and were warmly applauded.

The next number was "The Golden Wedding," with Miss Papendick as an introductory dance. The pierrettes were Ann Collins, Marie Church, Margaret Gale, Mary D. Jones, Matilda Overton and Elsa Zelig, and the pierrots were Fowhanan, George O'Neill, Elmer Adkins, James Berg, Virgil Lewis and John Young Brown Jr. This number served to introduce the debutantes in the knee-length skirts. The double scotlet entered from the ladies' check room, at the left of the auditorium. They ran across the ballroom floor with mirthful shrieks, each boy carrying a bass drum, and scurried up steps leading to the stage. When on the stage the boys set the drums on the floor and stationed themselves behind them.

"Frisco Fliz" Seen.
Each girl seated herself on a drum, and then began an unexpected dance consisting of a series of movements of the feet in the air in execution of what society is pleased to term the "Frisco Fliz." It was a pretty picture. The number ended with couples dancing the "Frisco Fliz," and changing partners by a Virginia Reel process. From where the audience sat, about 100 feet away from the stage, it looked as if society was emulating the Winter Garden's famous "runway" for chorus girls.

Miss Adaline Capen and Charles Zelig gave a fascinating interpretation of the "Reconciliation Polka." It was in this dance that Miss Capen appeared in the Pierrette costume, which she wore for the remainder of the evening.

A ball valise by Marjorie Livingston and Howard Wilhelm, "La Reverence" by Gloria Gelsinger, and a duo by Miss Mary D. Jones as Pierrot and Miss Whittemore as Pierrette, followed in rapid order. A gavotte then served to introduce two other Velled Prophet Queens—Miss Shapleigh and Miss Taylor—completing the stage appearance of the Queens of the last four years. Miss Capen and Miss Zelig having appeared in earlier numbers. Others in the gavotte were Misses Elise Bookler, Elizabeth Holliday, Roberta Lewis, Cornelia McNair, Matilda Overton and Miss Grace Taylor.

The Taylor sisters—Jane and Grace—danced side by side and resembled two peas in a pod, they were so much alike. Their graceful leading of the gavotte movements was praised by many.

After a "banjo serenade" by Marjorie

Wolff and a "Rosebud Valse" by Miss Isabel Capen and George O'Neill, was the picturesque finale called "The Bridal Party," in which Miss Ann Collins was a truly blushing bride and Powhatan Clark a bridegroom. The bridesmaids, Misses Margaret Gale, Ann Lumashi, Lillian Martin, Elsa Zelig, Marie Church, Julia Tyler, Marie Wright and Cora Pittman, each carried a bouquet of American Beauties. There were no waits in the pantomime. It went with the dash of a professional performance. The balcony and box seats were emptied quickly in the general rush for the dance floor. After dancing 15 minutes everybody went to the basement, where all were seated at dinner and served in 45 minutes. The dinner, in five courses, included broiled chicken and was served as part of what the guests got for their ten dollars.

The girls who had appeared in special dances on the stage flitted about the dining tables in their stage costumes, selling cigarettes and cigars at "random" prices. Champagne also was opened freely, at extra cost to the diners. There was a cabaret performance, by social favorites, on a stage erected in the center of the big basement. At midnight the ball proper began, and at 2 a. m. there was still a crowd upon the floor.

BASEBALL FOR MEXICANS

Carranza Will Encourage Game Along Border, Consular Agent Says.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 22.—Venturiano Carranza, head of the de facto Government in Mexico, is going to encourage the American game of baseball in the republic as a substitute for bull fights and other diversions along the border, according to Adolfo Carrillo, his consular agent here.

Gen. Carranza, Carrillo said, will shut down on border iniquities as practiced at Juarez, Mexicali, Tijuana and other border towns and will not recognize racetracks or Monte Carlo, or concessions therefor.

Lake Ship Company Passes Dividend.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—The Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Co. directors yesterday passed the quarterly dividend, the action being declared necessary by reason of a decrease in lake passenger traffic this season. The stock has been paying 5 per cent annually.

American Aviator Not Captured.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Rumors that Norman Prince, American aviator, had been captured by Germans were officially denied by a representative of the Foreign Office today. Instead of having been made prisoner, Prince recently brought down an enemy battle plane single handed.

GOVERNOR FLIES 22 MILES IN BALLOON, LANDS SAFELY

Gov. Major landed safely after his first balloon trip yesterday afternoon, near Columbia, Ill. The balloon, in charge of William F. Assman, was in the air about two hours. License Commissioner Horace S. Runney was one of the party in the car.

The anchor of the balloon was dropped upon the farm of Albert Diers, 22 miles by air line from Grand avenue and Meramec street, where the start was made. The passengers all found the trip enjoyable, but uneventful. They scattered toy balloons and printed matter advertising the German war relief bazaar to be held next week in the Coliseum.

MORE TROOPS GO TO TEXAS BORDER BECAUSE OF RAIDS

Twenty-Eighth Regiment of Infantry Ordered to Harlingen From Galveston.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The Twenty-eighth Regiment of Infantry has been ordered from Galveston to Harlingen, Tex., by the War Department, as a result of the renewal of bandit raids on Texas border towns.

The troops will be used by Gen. F. H. Johnston to give added protection to small posts such as that at Ojo del Agua, where three soldiers were killed and eight wounded Monday morning in a bandit attack.

Officials said today that the army was doing all it legally could to check the bandit raids at the border. The situation, they said, was not a military one but a civil one, under the jurisdiction of Texas. Unless the Governor should formally ask for Federal intervention there is no authority for the establishment of a military zone and the declaration of martial law. Many of the raiders live on the American side, officials believe. Army detachments guarding various towns may repel attacks, but cannot go beyond that without additional authority. As it is, the troops are acting beyond a rigid interpretation of their power in aiding in pursuit of raiders. War Department officials, however, will give every possible aid to the civil authorities in protecting towns and ranches.

Yaquis Kill 44 Soldiers in Sinaloa and Burn Bodies.

TOPOLOBAMPO, Mexico, Oct. 21, via radio to San Diego, Cal., Oct. 22.—A detachment of troops has been ambushed by Yaqui Indians between the plantation of the United Sugar Co. at Los Mochis and San Blas, Sinaloa, according to reports received here today, and 44 of the 46 soldiers were killed. The Indians piled the bodies on a railroad bridge, and the report says, burned them by setting fire to the bridge.

The band consisted of 150 Indians. They are reported to be crossing the Puerto River and moving toward one of the United Sugar Co. plantations at Aguililla, about nine miles from Los Mochis. Carranza troops have been sent from Los Mochis garrison against them. Gen. Diegues, in command of the Carranza troops in Sinaloa and Sonora, is holding conferences with the Yaqui chiefs in an attempt to control the Indian situation.

Telegraphic communication has been re-established between Guaymas and Mazatlan, for the first time in almost three years.

Body of Japanese Found Among Mexicans Killed Near Brownsville.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 22.—The body of a Japanese was found among the Mexicans killed in yesterday's fight between United States soldiers and Mexican bandits at Ojo del Agua. The Japanese apparently had been shot in the fight, but there was nothing to indicate whether he belonged to the raiders.

15 Mexicans Sentenced for Organizing in U. S. to Invade Mexico. EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 22.—Eighteen Mexicans, convicted of organizing a military expedition to invade Mexico in violation of the neutrality laws of the United States, were sentenced yesterday by Judge T. S. Maxey, in the Federal District Court, Ricardo Aguilar, alleged leader of the expedition, and Albino Frias, his chief lieutenant, were sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth prison. Jose Sanchez, another leader, will serve one year in Leavenworth, and 15 other defendants of lesser rank were sentenced to serve four months in the El Paso County Jail. All were followers of the late Gen. Pascual Orozco.

The men were rounded up last July near Fort Hancock, Tex., by troops of the Thirteenth Cavalry, when the expedition, heavily armed, was about to cross the Rio Grande into Mexico.

Villa Consul at New Orleans Gives Records to Carranza Official. NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—Jose Garza, in charge of the Villa consulate here, closed the consulate offices yesterday and delivered to local Carranza representatives his records and office property. He expressed a desire "to contribute to the early pacification of our country" and declared his willingness to aid the Government recognized by the United States and the Latin-American republics.

Active Campaign Against Bandits by Carranza Commander Is Promised. BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 22.—An active campaign against bandits on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande by Gen. Eugenio Lopez, Carranza commander in Matamoros, was promised today by Jose Z. Garza, Carranza Consul here. Garza said Gen. Lopez had required more troops in order to handle the Mexican side of the raids.

The body of a Japanese was found among the Mexicans killed in yesterday's fight between United States soldiers and Mexican bandits at Ojo del Agua. The Japanese apparently had been shot in the fight, but there was nothing to indicate whether he belonged to the raiders.

Three Mexicans Shoot American, He and Wife Kill Two Assassins. SAN MARCOS, Tex., Oct. 22.—Alfred Wilke is in a critical condition today at Lockhart, where he was taken after he and his wife were attacked and fought with three Mexicans at their home near Maricande last night. Two of the Mexicans were killed.

Mrs. Wilke, describing the fight, said the Mexicans asked for work and, when refused, shot her husband three times in the back. She wrested a knife from one and threw it to her husband, who killed one of the attackers with it. She obtained a shotgun and killed another. The survivor fled.

RUSSIA BUYS ARKANSAS LUMBER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 22.—Arkansas lumber mills will furnish approximately 300,000 feet of red oak timber to the Russian Government within the next few weeks, it was announced here today. One contract is for 6,000,000 feet of red oak railroad ties and another for a million. The ties will be used in double tracking the Riga to Moscow railroad, it was said.

About 6,000,000 feet of yellow pine will be shipped from Arkansas to help fill the 6,000,000 contract awarded Southern lumbermen last week by the Italian Government. The larger part of this order, it was said, would be filled in Louisiana.

STATE REPUBLICAN CHAIRMAN PLEDGES CONVENTION HELP

Jacob L. Babler Says Party Will Co-operate in Fight to Bring Meetings Here.

Jacob L. Babler, chairman of the Republican State Committee, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that his organization would co-operate actively with the National Conventions Association to get the Republican National Convention of 1916 for St. Louis. Babler said that Missouri, being a pivotal State, ought to have the National Convention for political reasons.

The Missouri State convention for the selection of delegates to the national convention probably would be held early, he said, and Missouri would assume a leading position in the Republican politics of the country. The holding of the national convention in St. Louis would greatly strengthen the chances of the Republicans for carrying the State at the election in November, 1916, Babler pointed out, and would also have its influence in other central states.

Mass Meeting Tuesday.
Babler and other Republican leaders, as well as the Democratic leaders, will be invited by the convention's association to attend a mass meeting at the Mercantile Club Tuesday night to perfect plans for raising a fund of $100,000 to get one of the national conventions. As the Republican National Committee will meet first, it is probable that a very strong effort will be made to get the Republican national convention, which gives promise of being an interesting affair.

With Senator Weeks, former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, former Senator Burton of Ohio, and several other candidates, already in the field, with Senator Root of New York, Senator Borah of Idaho, and former President Taft in the background as possible candidates, the indications are that there will be a very spirited contest in the convention for the nomination, and that the convention will last at least a week.

E. L. Morse of Excelsior Springs, one of the most powerful Republican leaders in the State, was in conference with Babler today, and said that he would also co-operate with the State committee and the Conventions Association. Morse has a wide acquaintance with the Republican national committee, and keeps in close touch with them on political questions.

"I think proper political work, and with the offer of a substantial sum of money, St. Louis can get the Republican convention," Babler said. "Chicago probably will be the principal rival of St. Louis. Illinois is safely Republican, and Chicago will have no political reason to offer for the convention. Chicago's hotels are no more adequate than those of St. Louis, and we have a better convention hall."

There never was a time when the holding of the convention in St. Louis would mean so much to the Republicans as next year. Every Republican candidate would like to have the Missouri delegation to the convention, and candidates are unfriendly to St. Louis would not likely stand very well with the party workers in this State."

Would Arrange Conference.
Babler and Morse suggested that conference with some of the Republican National Committee, in advance of the meeting at Washington, probably would have good effect.

Mayor Kiel, Republican City Chairman John Schmoll, Republican National Committee Thomas K. Niedringhaus, Democratic National Committee Mayor Gotha, Democratic City Chairman Meehan, and Senators Stone and Reed have been invited to attend the meeting Tuesday night to offer suggestions for getting the conventions.

The bankers, brewers, hotel men and representatives of every line of industry and business in St. Louis, as well as the officials of all the leading clubs and civic and business organizations, have been invited to attend the meeting. The discussion of the conventions proposition will be preceded by a smoker.

Congressmen Meeker, Dyer and Igoe also have been invited to attend and offer suggestions. Mayor Molman of East St. Louis, and the officials of the East St. Louis Commercial Club and the Association of Commerce, will be asked to co-operate with St. Louis in getting the conventions.

The Conventions Association is arranging to send strong delegations to Washington to present the claims of St. Louis to the two committees.

JOFFRE'S WAR MACHINE BETTER THAN KAISER'S AT ITS BEST, SAYS OBSERVER

E. Alexander Powell Calls Champagne Drive Greatest and Bloodiest Battle of All Time, Except That of the Marne.

By E. ALEXANDER POWELL.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN

CHAMPAGNE, Oct. 22.—Hell holds no horror for one who has seen the battlefield of Champagne. Could Dante have been beside me during these last three days he would never have written the Inferno, because the truth is that his imagination would have seemed colorless and tame.

The difficulty in writing about it is that no one will believe me. People will accuse me of imagination and of exaggeration, whereas the truth is that no one could imagine much less exaggerate, the horrors that I have seen. A stretch of rolling moorland five miles wide and 15 long, which has been converted into a slaughter house, a cesspool and a garbage dump combined—such is the battlefield of Champagne.

In order that you may have a clear understanding of the bloody business, get out the family atlas, and on the map of Eastern France draw a more or less irregular line from Rheims to Verdun. This line roughly corresponds to the battle front in Champagne. On the south side of it are the French, on the north the Germans. About midway between Rheims and Verdun mark off on that line a sector of some 15 miles. This was the place chosen by the French for their sledgehammer blow against the German wall of steel, and the successful offensive which began here Sept. 15 probably will be known, when histories come to be written, as the Battle of Champagne.

Barring the Marne, it is doubtless the greatest battle ever fought and the bloodiest. In the neighborhood of a million and a half of Frenchmen and Germans took part in that battle, in which Europe lost more men in killed and wounded than fought at Gettysburg.

Imagine, if you please, a gently rolling plain with occasional ridges, none of them much over 100 feet in height, and wandering in and out between these ridges the narrow silver ribbon of the Marne. There is scarcely a region in all France where a great battle could have been fought with less injury to property, for the few villages that dot the plain are wretchedly poor, the trees are stunted and scraggly and even the grass seems to wither and die of a broken heart. The soil is chalky, and you have only to scratch it to leave a vivid scar. This was the great maneuver ground of Châlons, and it was good for little else, yet only a few miles to the eastward begin the vineyards which are the chief wealth of this part of France and to the east is the beautiful forest of Argonne.

I think the thing that impressed me about the battle of Champagne was the enormous amount of preparatory work done by the French before a gun was fired. It is said that close to 3000 field guns were concentrated along these 15 miles of battle front and that behind each of those guns were stacked 2000 shells.

An American aviator who flew over the field when the action was at its height told me that the bombardment sounded like the firing of a machine gun made of cannon.

In order to bring up the vast amount of ammunition and supplies

the French built a macadamized highway 50 feet wide and nine miles long across the rolling plain.

That the huge masses of infantry for the attack might reach their stations without being annihilated by German shell fire they dug 10 miles of communicating trenches, eight feet deep and wide enough for four men to walk abreast. Imagine the work that was entailed, not only in assembling so vast a force of men and guiding it, but in providing that that force with food, water, fodder, clothing and ammunition.

Busiest Spot of Size on Earth.

The battlefield of Champagne is the busiest spot of its size on the face of the globe. It looks like the Panama Canal Zone at the rush period of its construction, like "the greatest show on earth" multiplied 10,000 times, getting ready for an afternoon performance.

The roads behind the front for 20 miles are filled with troops and transport trains; long columns of sturdy infantrymen in pale blue coats and wearing the new steel helmet which makes the French fighting man of today so startlingly resemble his ancestor, the man-at-arms of the middle ages; brown-skinned men from North Africa in turban and black-skinned men from West

Africa in rakish tarbooshes; sun-tanned

colonial soldiers, soldiers from Annam, deep and twice that in diameter. In the terrible blast which caused it 500 German soldiers perished.

At another point on what had been the German line, I saw a yawning hole as large as the cellar of a good sized apartment house. It marked the site of a German blockhouse, but the blockhouse and the men who composed its garrison, had been blown out of existence by a torrent of 300 70-millimeter high explosive shells.

There are no words between the covers of a dictionary to describe what it must have been like within the German lines

under that rain of death.

Curtains of Shell Fire.

No wonder that hundreds of the German prisoners were found to be in-

ane. A curtain of shell fire made it impossible for the men in the bombardment trenches to retreat. Hundreds of those who had taken refuge in their underground shelters were buried alive

when the explosion of the great French ammunition sent the earthen walls crashing in upon them.

Whole forests of trees, each tree as large as a man's thigh, were mowed down by the blast of steel from the French guns, as the harvester mows down a field of grain.

The wire entanglements before the German trenches were swept away as though by the hand of God.

The steel chevaux de frise and shields of armor plate were riddled like a sheet of paper into which someone had stabbed holes with a pencil.

Trenches which it had taken months of painstaking work to build were utterly demolished in an hour.

The sand bags which lined the parapets were set on fire by the French high explosives, and the soldiers behind them were suffocated by the fumes. The captured German trenches presented the most horrible sight that I had ever seen or ever expect to see. This is not rethoric, this is fact.

Along the whole front of 15 miles the earth is littered with torn steel shields and twisted wire, with broken wagons, bits of harness, cartridge pouches, denied helmets, bayonets, some of them bent double, broken rifles, field gun shells and cartridges, hand grenades, aerial torpedoes, knapsacks, bottles, splintered planks, sheets of corrugated iron which had been turned into sieves by bursting shrapnel, pieces of machinery, trench mortars, blood-soaked bandages, fatigue caps, entrenching tools, stoves, furniture, pots of jam and marmalade, water, water bottles, shreds of clothing and the most horrible of all, unburied portions of what had once been human beings.

Going through an abandoned trench

I stumbled over a mass of rags and they dropped apart to disclose the headless, armless, legless torso of a man. I kicked a hobnailed German boot out of my path and from it fell a foot. A hand with awful, outspread fingers, struggling for help for its dead owner.

I peered inquisitively into a dugout, only to be driven back by an overpowering stench.

A French soldier, more hardened to the business than I, went in with a candle and found the shell-blackened bodies of three Germans. Clashed in the dead fingers of one of them was a postcard from a little town in Bavaria.

It began: "Dearest Heinrich: You went away from us just a year ago today. I miss you terribly and pray hourly for your safe return." The rest

we could not read. It had been blotted out by a horrid crimson stain.

Dotted With Newly-Made Mounds.

The battlefield is dotted with newly made mounds and little wooden crosses.

Scattered in places on one of the pitiful little crosses I read: "Un brave

Kmile Petit. Mort au Champ d'honneur.

Priez pour lui."

Six feet to the left was another cross which marks the place where sleeps

Gottlieb Zimmermann of the Wuertemburg pioneers, and underneath in German script, that verse from the Bible which says: "I have fought the good fight." Close by was still another little mound, under which rested, so the headboard told, Mohammed ben Mahammad of the Fourth Algerian Tiraillours. They rest there, quietly, side by side, Frenchmen, German and African, under the soil of Champagne, while somewhere in France and in Wuertemburg and in Algeria women are waiting and watching and praying for Emilie and for Gottlieb and for Mohammed.

During three days that I spent upon the battlefield the roar of the guns never ceased and scarcely slackened, for the French are still pounding away at the new German positions. The French guns seemed to be literally everywhere.

One could scarcely walk a hundred yards without stumbling upon a skillfully masked battery. In the shelter of a ridge was posted a battery of 165 millimeter (8-inch) guns, painted with the marking of a giraffe. In order to escape the searching eyes of the German aviators and named respectively,

Alice, Fernande, Charlotte and Maria.

From a square opening which yawned

in the earth nearly protruded the long,

lean muzzle of an eight-inch naval gun,

the breach of which was 30 feet below the ground in a gun pit, which was capable of resisting any high explosive shells that might chance to fall upon it.

This naval monster was in charge of a crew of sailors, who boasted that their pet could drop 200 pounds of melinite in the open in 15 minutes. By the guns to which the French owe their success in the Champagne-guns which will in all likelihood prove the deciding factor in this war—are not the cumbersome sledge cannon or mammoth naval pieces, but the mobile, quick-firing ever-tiring, hard-hitting "seventyfives," whose fire the Germans resentfully exclaim is not deadly, but murderous.

The most significant thing that I saw in Champagne was a steel turret, some eight or nine feet in diameter and perhaps six feet high, a smaller edition of those on battleships. Access into the interior was had through a small iron door at the back, and inside was mounted a quick-firer.

This turret was mounted on the German trenches, in such a position as to flank any frontal assault but the terrific pounding of the French batteries soon put it out of business.

After the storming of the German position it was found that the door of the turret was fastened on the outside by a chain and padlock. Breaking it open the French found inside the bodies

A Little More Beef

... now, this is how the fat man had come by his meal.

By RUDYARD KIPLING.

"A LITTLE more beef, please," said the fat man with the gray whiskers and the spattered waistcoat. "You can't eat too much of good beef—not even when the prices are going up hoof over hoof." And he settled himself down to load in a fresh cargo.

Now, this is how the fat man had come by his meal. One thousand miles away, a red Texan steer was preparing to go to bed for the night in the company of his fellows—myriad of his fellows. From dawn till late dusk he had loafed across the leagues of grass and grunted savagely as each mouthful proved to his mind that grass was not what he had known it in his youth. But the steer was wrong. That summer had brought great growth to Montana and Northern Dakota. The cattle feed was withering day by day, and the more prudent stock owners had written to the East for manufactured provender. Only the little cactus that grows with the grasses appeared to enjoy it.

The cattle certainly did not; and the cowboys from the very beginning of spring had used language considered profane even for the cowboy. What their ponies said has never been recorded. The ponies had the worst time of all, and at each night camp whispered to each other their longings for the winter, when they would be turned out on the freezing ranges—galled from wither to croup, but riderless—thank heaven, riderless. On these various miseries the sun looked down impartial. His business was to make the ground and ruin the grasses.

The cattle—the acres of huddled cattle—were restless. In the first place, they were forced to scatter for grass; and in the second the heat told on their tempers and made them prod each other with their long horns. In the heart of the herd you would have thought men were fighting with single sticks. On the outskirts, posted at quarter-mile intervals, sat the cowboys on their ponies, the brims of their hats tilted over their sun-browned noses, their feet out of the big brown-leather hooded stirrups, and their hands gripping the horn of the heavy saddle to keep themselves from falling on to the ground—sleeping. A cowboy can sleep at full gallop; on the other hand, he can keep awake also at full gallop for eight and forty hours and wear down six unamiable bronches in the process.

L AKE PARMALEEN, Shwin, the German who could not ride but had a blind affection for cattle from the branding yard to the butcher's block; Michigan, so called because he said he came from California, but spoke not the Californian tongue; Jim from San Diego, to distinguish him from other Jims; and The Corpses, were the outposts of the herd. The Corpses had won his name from a statement made in the fullness of much McBrayer whisky, that he had once been a graduate of Corpus Christi. He spoke truth, but to the wrong audience. The inhabitants of the Blüte Saloon, after several attempts to get the name of the name, dubbed the speaker The Corpses, and as long as he cinched a broncho or flung a spur within 400 miles of Livingston—yes, far in the south, even to the unexplored borders of the sheep-eater Indians—he was known by that unlovely name. How he had passed from college to cattle no man knew, and, according to the etiquette of the West, no man asked.

He was not by any means a tenderfoot—had no unmanly weakness for washing, did not in the least object to appearing at the wild and wonderful reunions held nightly. ## NOTHING WRINKLES, FADES OR SHRINKS

Says women can save $5 in an hour by dry cleaning everything at home with gasoline.

Women here who have tried dry cleaning find it very easy and inexpensive to clean and freshen all the ribbons, silks, satins, laces, yokes, furs, silk shirt waists, kid gloves and shoes, neckties, children's clothes, suits, caps, Swiss, lawn, organdie and chiffon dresses, woollen garments, fancy vests, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drug store and put it in two gallons of gasoline, where it instantly dissolves, then put in the goods to be cleaned, rub a little and out they come, looking as bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing. You can do five dollars' worth of home dry cleaning in an hour at little cost. It is so easy and you can't make a mistake. Any grocery or garage will supply the gasoline and you can obtain two ounces of solvite at the drug store, which is simply a gasoline soap, then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your dry cleaning outfit—ADV.

glass. The Corpses was recognized in the freemasonry of the craft as "one of the C. M. R.'s boys, and tough at that."

The C. M. R. controlled much cattle, and their slaughter-houses in Chicago bubbled the blood of beefs all day long. Their salt-beef fed the sailor on the sea, and their loed, best firsts, the housekeeper in the London suburbs. Not even the firm knew how many cowsling they employed, but all the firm knew that on the fourteenth day of July their stockyards at Wachoma Junction were to be filled with 2000 head of cattle, ready for immediate shipment to Chicago while prices yet ruled high, and before the grass had withered utterly. Late, Michigan, Jim, The Corpses and the others knew this too, and were heartily glad of it, because they would be paid up in Chicago for their half-year's work and would then do their best towards painting that town in purest vermilion. They would get drunk; they would gamble, and would otherwise enjoy themselves till they were broke; and then they would hire out again.

T HE sun dropped behind the rolling hills; and the cattle halted for the night, cheered and cooled by a little wandering breeze. The red steer's mother had been caught in a hailstorm five years ago. Till she went the way of all cowboys she missed no opportunity of telling her son to beware of the hot day and the cold wind that does not know its own mind. "When it blows five ways at once," said she, "and makes your horns feel creepy, get away, my son. Follow the time-honored instinct of our tribe, and run. I ran," she looked ruefully at the scars on her side—"but that was in a barb-wire country, and it hurt me."

Now the less, run. The red steer chewed his cud, and the little red of the darkness played round his horns—all five ways at once. The cowboys lifted up their voices in unmelodious songs, that the cattle might know where they were, and be slowly walking round the recumbent herd. "Do anybody's horns feel creepy?" queried the red steer of his neighbors. "My mother told me," and he repeated the tale to the edification of the yearlings and the four-year-olds breathing heavily at his side.

The song of the cowboys rose higher. The cattle bowed their heads. They were at hand. They were safe. Something had happened to the quiet stars. They were dying out, one by one, and the wind was freshening. "Bless my hoots!" muttered a yearling. "My horns are beginning to feel creepy." Softly the red steer lifted his head. "Come away," quoth he to the yearling. "Come away, to the outskirts, and we'll move, my mother said." . . . The innocent fool followed, and a white heifer saw them move. Being a woman, she naturally bellowed "Finger wolves!" and ran forward blindly into a dun steer dreaming over clover.

F OLLOWED the thunder of cattle rising to their feet, and the triple crack of a whip. The little wind had dropped for a moment, only to fall on the herd with a shriek and a few stinging drops of hail, that stung as keenly as the whips. The herd broke into a trot, a canter and then a mad gallop. Black fear was behind them, black night in front. They headed into the night, bellowing with terror; and at their side rode the men with the whips. The ponies grunted as they felt the raking spurs. They knew that an all-night gallop lay before them, and was behind the luckless cayuse that stumbled in that ride. Then fell the half-blinding and choking and flogging and the same stroke. The herd opened like a fan. The red steer heard a contingent he knew not whither. A man with a whip rode at his right flank. Behind him the lightning showed a field of glimmering horns, and of muscled flecked with foam; a field of red terror-strained eyes and cheery frontlets. The man looked back also, and his terror was greater than that of the beasts. The herd had surrounded him in the darkness. His salvation lay in the legs of Whisky Peat and Whisky Peat knew it—knew it until an unseen gopher hole received his rear foot as he strained every nerve—in the heart of the flying herd, with the red steer at his flanks. Then, being only an overworked cayuse, Whisky Peat fell, and the red steer fancied that there was something soft on the ground.

It was Michigan, Jim and Late who at last brought the herd to a standstill as the dawn was breaking. "What's come to The Corpses?" quoth Late. Jim loosened the girths of his quivering pony and made answer slowly: "Unless I'm a blamed fool, the gentleman is now livin' up to his durned appellation 'bout as malleable as wax—what there is of him and the cayuse." "Let's go and look," said Late, shuddering slightly, for the morning air, you must understand, was raw. "Let's go to a much hotter place than Texas," responded Jim. "Get the Corpses to the Junction first. Guess what's left of The Corpses will keep." And it did. And that was how the fat man in Chicago got his beef. It belonged to the red steer.

Billy Bull's Party

Sandman story of how Mr. Frog invited all the birds and animals who thought they were going to have a great time.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

I AM going to give a party," said Billy Bull Frog one day, "and I must get someone to carry the invitations for me."

"I'll do that for you," said a Blue Bird which happened to be sitting on a bush by the pond, and always wanted to do something for someone. So the invitations were sent out to everybody in the woods, and Billy Bull Frog talked of nothing else but his party, and what a grand affair it would be for days before it came off.

Mrs. Squirrel made herself a new dress, with a sash to cover her tail, which was not a brush, as she could have wished it to be, and Mrs. Rabbit made all the little rabbits a new white dress, and that took some little time because there were a great many little bunnies. All the birds chattered so about the party that no one could sleep that morning, and Mr. and Mrs. Owl said they never remembered such a fuss over a party before, which went to prove that Billy Bull was a great society fellow.

When the hour arrived they all gathered around the pond and Billy Bull with a spanking clean white vest, hopped to welcome them.

T HE little Bunnies kept looking for the goodies they expected to have at a party, and Mrs. Squirrel said she had looked everywhere, but she saw no signs of a banquet. The birds hopped about picking up seeds and looking under bushes, but nowhere could anyone find a table spread for a feast.

"I thought we might have a game of leap frog," said Billy Bull after a while, when everybody seemed uneasy. "Leap frog," said Mrs. Squirrel. "You didn't invite us here to play that clownish game, I hope."

"I can't see a thing," said Mrs. Owl, from the tree above. "I wish you would have a party at night, Billy Bull Frog. You know well enough I seldom go out in the daytime."

"Well, we will play something else," said Billy Bull. "I only just mentioned that game because I have always played it. We can play tag or hide and seek."

"My children are all dressed in their best clothes," said Mrs. Bunny, "and I did not come to a party to play games, did you, Mrs. Squirrel?" she said, looking very wise.

"No, indeed, I did not," replied Mrs. Squirrel, "but that seems to be all there is to do. I don't see any table."

"No, I, nor I," said the birds. "Billy Bull, where is your dining room?" asked a Blue Jay. "You have asked us to a party and we all came here. We have been sitting for an hour and you ask us to play games."

"Yes," said Mrs. Squirrel, "and I am hungry. I didn't eat much today because I knew I was coming to this party."

B ILLY BULL began to hop about uneasily and looked at the other frogs who sat by the pond. He had plenty to eat but he had just thought of something that had quite escaped his mind before, and he wondered how he was to tell his guests that "My dear friends," he said, at last,

"I have a feast all prepared for you, and if you will all follow me you will, I am sure, feel repaid for doing so."

And with this Billy Bull turned around and dived to the bottom of the pond, leaving his guests too astonished to speak for a minute.

Mrs. Blue Jay found her voice first. "Well, does he expect us to jump into that pond and be drowned?" she said. "I might have known a frog party would not be worth coming to."

Mrs. Bunny and all her little bunnies stood looking at the spot where Billy Bull had disappeared, followed by all his companions.

"Mrs. Squirrel thought he would surely come back and explain, but after waiting a while she thought Billy Bull's party the very worst she had ever attended."

"Well, I am going home and get something to eat," she said. "So am I," said Mrs. Bunny, and all the little Bunnies began to cry, "I want some party, I want some party."

T HE birds all sat in the bushes for a while waiting to see if they could not catch a glimpse of their host, but not once did they see anything of the frog family that day, and when it began to get dark away they flew, too.

Billy came up that night but Mrs. Owl was waiting for him and darted down from her tree, "so you would fool all of us, would you," she screamed, and if it had not been that Billy Bull was a very quick and nimble hopper he would never have lived to move from that pond, which he did the next day, for he knew after that party he would not be at all popular in that neighborhood.

Food Facts for The Workingman's Wife to Study.

You owe it to yourself, your husband and family to buy all foodstuffs from practically one standpoint—nutrition. Other factors count of course, but nutrition should not be sacrificed for anything else, for nutrition is the basis of economic food buying.

Most workmen's wives serve too much meat. From a standpoint of nutrition, meat is dear food. Some meat is essential, but we can probably obtain much of our meat and substitute other nutritious but much cheaper food. There's Faust Spaghetti. When we eat it we absorb practically all of it, most of it goes to enrich our blood and build up our bodies. Faust Spaghetti is made of Durum wheat—a highly nutritious cereal. Sold in large 10c packages—is a splendid cereal meat substitute, is easily prepared and makes fine eating. Try plenty of Faust Spaghetti—cut down on meat.

FURTHER DETAILS OF EXPLORATION BY STEFANSSON

Letters Tell of Determining "Edge of Continental Shelf" at Two Places.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Additional details of the explorations in the polar regions of Vilhjálmur Stefansson, commanding the Canadian Arctic expedition are given in two letters received from the explorer by a friend here. Mr. Stefansson gives new facts about Banks Island and supplies details of his soundings in Beaufort Sea.

In the first letter written at Mr. Stefansson's winter quarters near Kellett, Banks Island, on Feb. 12, the explorer says:

"In my opinion the mountains we crossed in latitude 72 degrees 40 minutes, approximately, going east to De Salis Bay, Banks Island, are 4000 feet high at least.

"We found but one ancient village ruined in our travels on Banks Island. That was at Cape Kellett. North of there the traces seemed to be of transient Eskimo, and probably less than a century old. There are no Eskimo on the island this winter.

"Off the main land of Alaska we found the continental shelf at a steep slope, and the edge of the shelf was about 50 miles off shore in 140 degrees west longitude.

"A thing which cannot be too much regretted is that we had to take our many soundings in deep water, with only some 800 meters of wire, but that was all we had. Still we had determined the edge of the continental shelf in two places in the northwestern segment of our journey—to the east of Prince Patrick Island, and northwest of Banks Island."

Stefansson is wintering at Banks Island.

DELBIDGE CLAIMS $5 FROM U. R. FOR RUINED TROUSERS

Says in Letter That Candle He Lighted, That He Might See to Read, Dripped on Clothes.

C. L. Delbridge of 1431 Webster avenue, self-constituted Nemesis of the United Railway Co., has sent the company a claim for $5, the value, he states, of a pair of trousers which he affirms was ruined by candle grease.

As the company does not use candle grease in any way which would be likely to damage passengers' clothing, it is not clear at first why it should have to pay this claim. But Delbridge proceeds to elucidate, in a letter which he has sent to the company, and a copy of which the Post-Dispatch has received.

Delbridge writes that he takes the Natural Bridge car at Fourth and Market streets shortly before 6 each evening, and that as the cars are not sufficiently for reading, in his opinion, he has adopted the plan of carrying a small candle with him. He lights this and reads his newspaper, while the other passengers strain their eyes by reading in semi-darkness, or sit and twiddle their thumbs.

When he got home last night, Delbridge writes, he found that, in spite of his precautions, the melted candle grease had trickled down and damaged his trousers. He asks for payment for the trousers, and does not demand that the company provide him with pocket searchlight and dry battery. This extreme moderation, he believes, will help convince the company of the justice of his claim.

BANKER IS EXPECTED TO TELL GRAND JURY OF OWEN ACCOUNT

Collector Koeln to Be Recalled in Inquiry Into Case of Water Rates Collector.

The grand jury will again take up, this afternoon, investigation of account of John B. Owen, former deputy collector in charge of water rates. A Mercantile Trust Co. official is expected to tell of the banking account kept by Owen with the company. Through this testimony the grand jury is expected to learn whether Owen had sufficient funds on hand to meet checks ranging from $200 to $2000 which he gave to the cashier in the water rates office in the past year as substitutes for cash which he took.

Collector Koeln, who was before the body yesterday, will be recalled. Other witnesses are Edward Foristel and Wilson Elliott, and Harvey Owen, son of John B. Owen. Elliott is a neighbor of Cashier Sattell.

Union Veteran, Former Head of Wholesale Paper Company.

F. O. Sawyer, 83 years old, of 4433 McPherson avenue, formerly head of a wholesale paper company which bore his name, died yesterday at his home, from cerebral hemorrhage. The funeral will be held from the residence at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Sawyer was an honorary pallbearer last week at the funeral of D. M. Houser. He was a Union veteran of the Civil War, having served under Gen. Lyon. His wife, a son and a daughter survive him.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell.

Mr. Jarr Learns That Autos Are Seft-Starting "Divorce Wagons."

MR. JARR scanned the morning paper eagerly.

"For a Monday morning there are very few," she remarked, half to herself.

"Very few what?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Bargain sales? Engagements? Weddings or divorces?"

"Now foolish you talk!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarr. "The Sunday papers are the papers that have the bargain sale advertisements and the engagement and marriage notices, mostly. Monday papers are the ones to read for those dreadful automobile accidents. I can't bear to think of them!"

"If you can't bear to think of them, what do you look so eagerly for?"

Mrs. Jarr regarded him with an expression of surprise.

"Don't I wish to see if any of our friends have been killed?" she asked.

"The Styrers have a fine machine and so has Clara Mudridge-Smith, and one can ver tell what will happen. Everybody seems to go riding like speed maniacs on Sundays, and so the Monday morning papers are full of accounts of automobile accidents that make one shudder."

"But are they more interesting than divorce suits?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Divorce suits are not interesting; they are shocking," was the reply, "and some of these automobile accidents lead to divorce suits because people get injured—both men and women—when automobile riding with people they should not be in the company of."

"Well," said Mr. Jarr, "then we should be happy we can't afford an automobile. This keeps us out of the casualty wards of the hospitals and the divorce courts."

"I don't know about that," replied Mrs. Jarr. "Here I see the Billingtons are getting a divorce. You remember the Claude Billingtons—they have four automobiles."

"I thought they got along nicely together—I mean the Billingtons and not the autos," remarked Mr. Jarr.

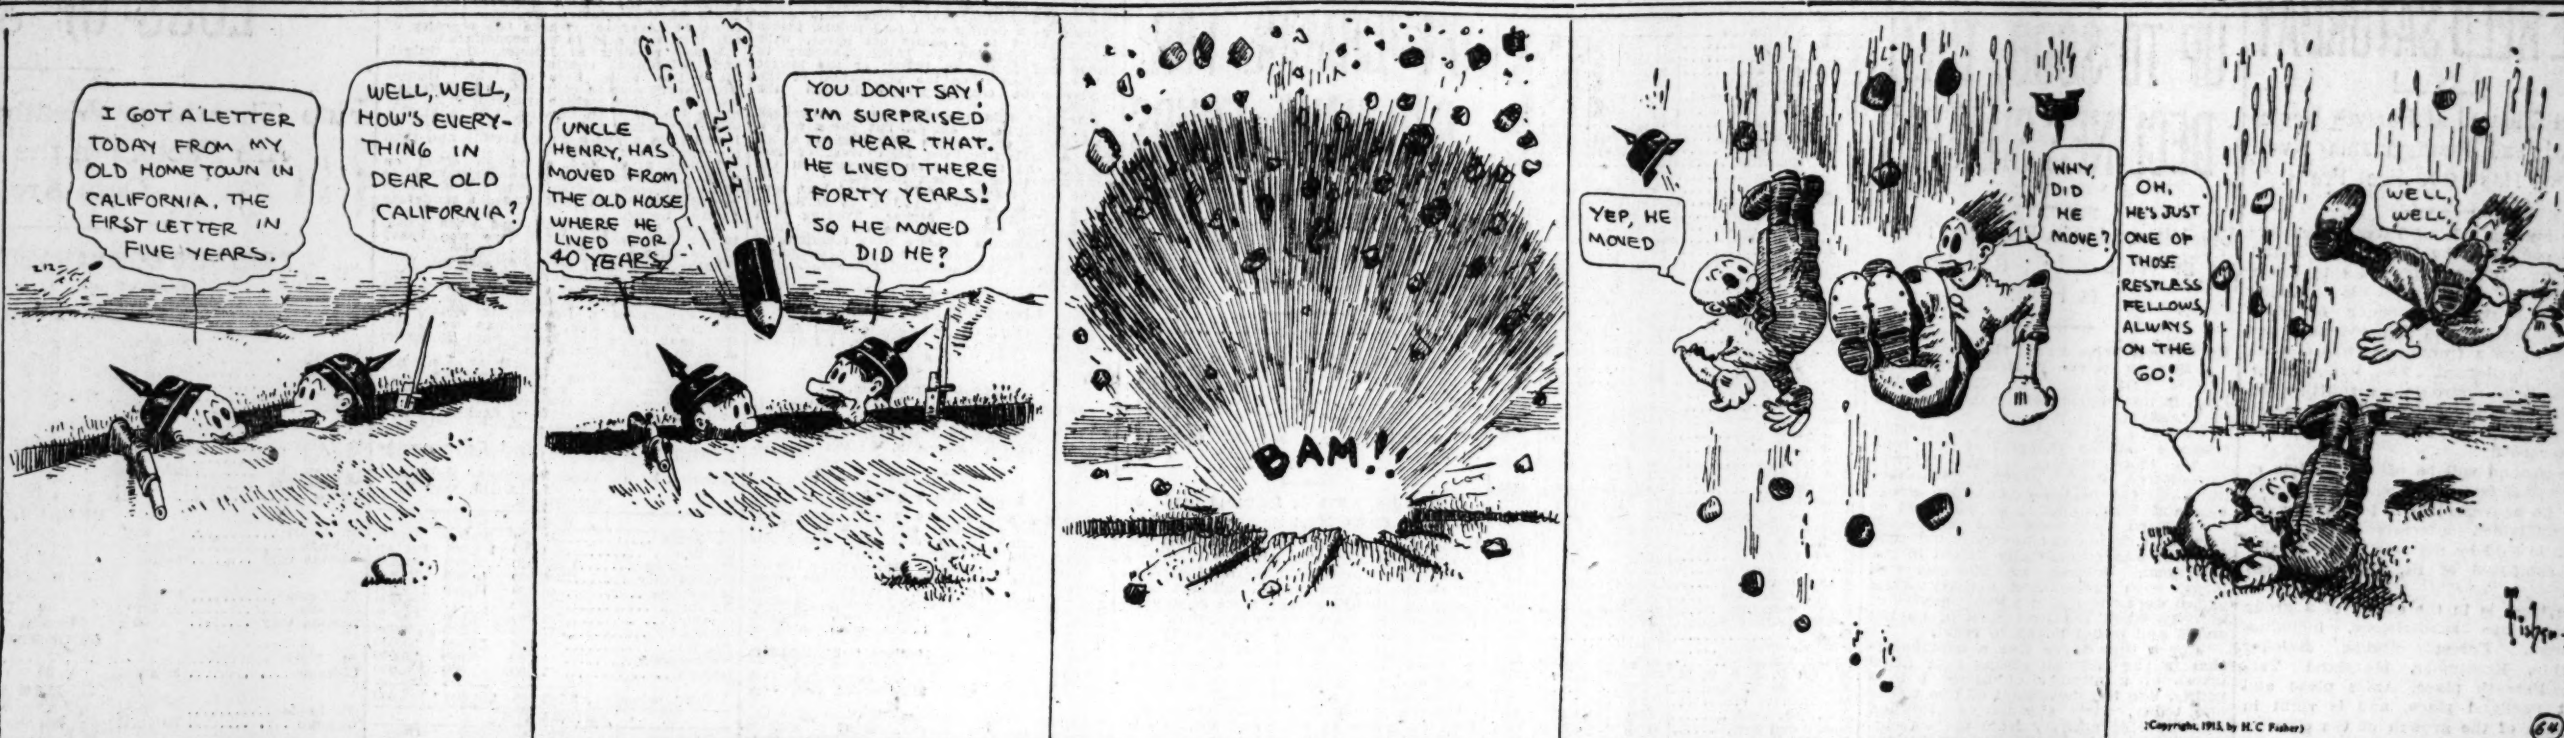

"Mr. Billington got a divorce from his first wife, who had been divorced from her first husband, who divorced his wife to marry her, and then he went back to his first wife, who got a divorce from her second husband—you remember," said Mrs. Jarr.

Mr. Jarr opened his eyes wide. "Not only is the Billington matrimonial mix-up out of my memory, but to even try to follow them drives me out of my senses," he said. "Phew!"

"But you remember the tall, stately blonde who was Claude Billington's second wife, don't you?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

"She was very prominent in civic club affairs. She divorced her husband to marry Claude Billington, and it's all very romantic, because it is said she will marry the man who married Claude Billington's first wife after Claude Billington divorced her."

Mr. Jarr mopped his brow and moaned. "It's too much for me," he gasped. "I can follow you in the automobile matter, but this divorce forgive and forget and remember and marry again is too bewildering for me."

"Well," said Mrs. Jarr, "if you expect to keep posted on Who's Who in Society you will have to remember who's divorced and who are about to be. If you don't you are liable to make terrible mistakes and ask people how their wives and husbands are since you last saw them only to learn that they are all somebody else's wives and husbands now."

"But how about the children?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"There are no children—in most cases," said Mrs. Jarr, "and when there are children, people who want to get divorces do not stop to consider the children. They say they intend to live their own lives in their own way—and the children are sent to boarding school."

"To live their little lives in any old way," interjected Mr. Jarr.

"I suppose so," said Mrs. Jarr, with a sigh. "But, after all, there are plenty of nice people who marry and when they have a little quarrel kiss and make up, like we do."

"Yes," said Mr. Jarr. "I have noticed that it is the divorced man who generally marries the divorced woman."

"So long as we haven't our first automobile or our first divorce we will live plainly in the old-fashioned way without figuring in automobile accidents or the divorce court," said Mrs. Jarr. "You should be very thankful. But still it would be nice to have an automobile."

"But think of the accidents every Sunday night that fill the Monday morning papers!" Mr. Jarr remarked.

"There are just as many careful automobile owners who do not get hurt as there are well-behaved married people who don't get divorced," said Mrs. Jarr.
